

Warrants Issued For Men Accused Of Attacking Home

D. M. Wright and J. L. Mabry Are Now Charged With Assault With Intent to Murder.

CASH IS PREPARING STATEMENT ON CASE

Wright and Mabry Are in Critical Condition at Hospital and Are Not Expected To Live.

In a private room at Davis-Fischer sanitarium, two men continue to battle for their lives. They do not know that late Tuesday warrants were issued for their arrest, charging assault with intent to murder.

The men are J. L. Mabry and D. M. Wright, dairymen, who live on the Decatur road, and who are charged with being the masked pair who precipitated a gun fight in the Fernwood home of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Colton last Saturday night, after battering down the door of the home with axes and shooting their way into a party of a dozen persons gathered there.

Warrants Sworn Out.

The warrants were sworn to in the chambers of Justice of the Peace C. H. Liver, of Decatur, Tuesday afternoon by DeKalb county authorities.

Physicians at the sanitarium have posted a notice, forbidding anyone—even relatives—to visit the two men. Their condition is admittedly precarious and it was not thought they could live another 24 hours, according to physicians Tuesday night.

The crisis, it was said, would come early Wednesday morning. The men have been in two critical conditions to talk for a day and a night. Their last statement was a reiteration that two masked negroes held them up on the Peachtree road, but authorities state that they have a good case against them to the contrary.

Cash Preparing Statement.

N. J. Cash, who was shot through the breast by the pair who invaded the Colton home, and who, it is said, had been previously whipped by the two men and was the object of the attack last Saturday night, was recovering Tuesday. He said:

"I am compiling a detailed statement about this case. I believe that it will clear up this case, and expose a lot of things the public and the authorities will be glad to know."

Mrs. Rosabelle Jones, avowed sweetheart of Cash, though both are married, with divorce suits pending now, has fully recovered from the gun battle, in which she received a severe blow over her head with a pop bottle.

DeKalb county authorities throughout have been most reticent about the case. They were at first reluctant to give out any information on the case, with the result that it passed as a plain highway robbery for 24 hours.

30,000 Poilus Sent To Quell Riff Tribesmen

France Will Try Subjugation of Abdul Krim as Spain Quits.

London, December 16.—Thirty thousand French troops are on their way to the African frontier between French Morocco and the Spanish protectorate over the wild Riff tribesmen, according to a dispatch to The Daily Mail.

Spain has withdrawn her troops from the interior of the Riff, and has publicly announced her intention to permit the Riffians to govern themselves under slight Spanish control.

It has been suggested that some other North Africa power, Italy, France or England, might intervene in the Riff to attempt the job at which Spain failed—subjugation of Abdul Krim's fighting Mohammedan tribesmen.

FLOGGING STORY BY GIRL RESULTS IN TWO ARRESTS

L. H. Pinson and Henry Pinson, Brothers, Are Given Their Freedom Under $3,000 Bonds Each

Picked up in a dazed condition by passing motorists on the Lakewood road, late Tuesday, Miss Bessie King, 19, of 43 East Harris street, told authorities that she had been kidnapped by two young men, thrust into their automobile, and driven to a lonely spot outside the city limits, where she was taken from the car and flogged.

The story Miss King told the police was to the effect that the two men she accuses—L. H. Pinson and Henry Pinson, who conduct an automobile tire shop at 90 Madison avenue—came to her house and dragged her bodily to a waiting automobile. They gave no explanation for the act, she relates. When they had reached a secluded section on the highway, they whipped her and left her bruised and bleeding on the road directly in the path of passing automobiles.

Released on Bond.

The two Pinsons, who are brothers, were arrested Tuesday night on a blanket charge of "disorderly conduct," while Captain of Night Police Grover C. Fain sent special investigators out to get additional facts in the case. The prisoners were released under $3,000 bond.

The police state that L. H. Pinson has admitted having been in an automobile with Miss King, but denies he whipped her. He said, however, that his brother, Henry, struck the girl, according to officers.

Miss King stated that while she did not know why she had been attacked, she thought she was suspected of disturbing some papers in the brothers' tire shop.

Jealousy Given as Cause.

Henry Pinson, in a statement made Tuesday night after his arrest, declared that jealousy on the part of Miss King had caused the whole trouble.

He had been going with her for some time, he said, and Tuesday morning that she had gone to the home of one of his girl friends and caused a disturbance there. Tuesday, he and his brother met Miss King at a part of town corner to take her to the home of the girl to discuss their differences. An argument arose while they were in the automobile, Henry Pinson said, and he slapped Miss King. He denied, however, that he had taken part in any flogging.

The brothers were arrested in a downtown hotel.

FIXING OF SALARIES RESUMED TODAY

Special Meeting Expected To Hear Protests of "Excessive High Salaries" for County Officials.

The interest of the entire county is centered on the special session this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock of the special Fulton county commission engaged in fixing the salaries of Fulton's minor officials.

When the meeting is called to order it is expected that the chambers of the commission will be filled to overflowing with citizens who have protested the "excessively high salaries" awarded minor officials in various county offices. Monday, at the close of a meeting in the office of Frank Weldon, secretary of the Atlanta Tax Payers' league, it was announced that representatives of four different civic organizations would be present to support a formal appeal for the commission to "scale down the salary schedule."

The organizations sponsoring this appeal are the Atlanta Tax Payers' league, the Atlanta League of Women Voters, the Atlanta Lawyers' club, and the Fulton county democratic committee.

To Consider Protests.

Whether or not the commission will reopen the salary question is not known. Despite protests against the salary schedule, every member of the commission has expressed unwillingness to resume the question, unless some "demanding reasons are shown."

The general impression is that the special session, called for today by Chairman Edwin F. Johnson, is for the sole purpose of considering protests. According to members of the commission, the meeting has been called in order that salaries in the office of the superior court clerk may be fixed within the time provided by law—ten days before January 1. With a public "protest" meeting slated for Saturday night in the Chamber of Commerce building, a

UNDERWOOD BILL ON SHOALS PLAN WEATHERS STORM

Smith Amendment Which Would Have Prevented Private Lease Beaten in Senate 49 to 32.

ALABAMA SENATOR ATTACKS EDITORIAL

Charges Blast at Bill Was "Bought" for Fertilizer Interests—Probe Will Begin Thursday.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, December 16.—The Underwood Muscle Shoals bill today hurdled the most formidable obstacle that yet has been placed in its path when it weathered a determined attempt to eliminate its private operation feature and limit it to government operation.

The amendment of Senator Smith, Democrat, South Carolina, which would have struck out all leasing provisions of the bill, was defeated by a vote of 49 to 32. Senator Underwood said he regarded the vote as assuring final passage of his bill, which he predicted would be disposed of before Christmas.

The vote was split widely, more republicans than democrats voting to sustain the Alabama senator's bill. Thirty-four republicans and 15 democrats voted against the amendment and eight republicans, 21 democrats, one farmer-labor member and two insurgents voted for it.

Editorial Bought, Is Claim.

Senator Underwood today again took notice of The Washington Herald editorial attacking him and his bill by charging on the senate floor that the editorial had been influenced by the fertilizer interests.

Declaring he had found proof of his statement that a lobby had influenced the editorial, he read a bulletin, which he said had been issued by the National Fertilizer association, with offices in Washington. The organization, he asserted, was referred to by farmers as the "fertilizer trust."

The bulletin said the Underwood bill was as objectionable as the Ford proposal, and, as quoted by Senator Underwood, added that the writer has interviewed many senators during the last week and had been assured that they would carry the opposition to the last ditch.

Start Probe Thursday.

The bulletin, the senator continued, suggested that people in the south were their senators to vote against the bill. He asserted the bulletin referred to the Underwood bill as the "power companies' bill."

"You will see," he remarked, "where the motive for the editorial came from." The subcommittee of the senate judiciary committee appointed to investigate the editorial will hold its first meeting Thursday. The subcommittee is composed of Senators Spencer, Missouri, chairman; Sterling, South Carolina; and Clegg, New York.

O. O. McIntyre Reaches Atlanta For Short Visit

Author of 'Bits of New York Life' Visits Stone Mountain Today.

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Oscar O. McIntyre, nationally popular writer of "Bits of New York Life" accompanied by the "fair lady in the land" arrived in Atlanta Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. McIntyre were welcomed upon arrival by members of The Constitution staff and a party of friends.

They will stay in Atlanta for two days. This morning they will be taken for a view of Stone Mountain. From Atlanta they will go to New Orleans and thence to the Pacific coast.

McIntyre's name may be odd—but he doesn't look it, nor act it. He is an unassuming, quiet young man, who sauntered into the Baltimore hotel lobby with the unassuming, yet debonaire and world-wise appearance of a let us say a Shakespearean actor.

To see and talk with McIntyre will bring confirmation of the opinion formed from his writing. He is a kindly man, a man with a big heart, without the taint of cynicism. The sneering contempt and criticism are foreign to his makeup. He is tolerance itself, deeply interested in the human side of every question, with never a condemnation for any human being, how low he may have fallen.

If your mental camera had previously conceived a notion of this versatile and unusual impressionist as a young man of flashing, lightning-like repartee, we can only say that one of his strong points is rather what the Germans call "gemuetlichkeit," geniality personified. He speaks slowly and deliberately with an ever-observant eye in the direction of his wife. One gets the impression that he would not contradict her for the world.

Church Worker's Letter Slip Irks Alto and Soprano Wives

San Francisco, December 16.—As the rich baritone voice of Homer Melvin Vorhies, church lecturer and social worker, echoed through the First Congregational church here, his wife No. 1 sang a soprano accompaniment, never suspecting that the woman singing alto on the other side of him was Mrs. Vorhies No. 2.

The story of the dual marital life of the middle-aged churchman was revealed here Tuesday when Mrs. Catherine Morison Vorhies, wife No. 1, demanded that her attorney take immediate steps to have her husband arrested.

Discovery of the "mutual husband" was made when Vorhies wrote two letters to his two wives and made the fatal mistake of putting them in the wrong envelopes. When Mrs. Catherine Vorhies received a love note addressed to "Dearest Myrtle" she was suspicious.

"Dearest Myrtle" proved to be Mrs. Myrtle Cleese Vorhies, wife No. 2, a San Francisco school teacher. She sang in the same choir with wife No. 1, and Vorhies, whenever the church man was in town.

After talking over their tangled state of matrimony, the two women decided that the proper thing to do would be to have their husband arrested on a charge of bigamy.

But Vorhies has never returned from his "business trip to Los Angeles," where he made the mistake in the letters.

His wives harbor a doubt as to whether he will ever return.

ROARK WILL FACE TRIAL JANUARY 7

Slayer of Miss Vena Moore Indicted Tuesday. William Schley Howard Engaged by Defense.

Shortly after the Fulton county grand jury Tuesday indicted Claude A. Roark as the slayer of Miss Vena Moore, Western Union automatic operator, Solicitor General John A. Boykin set January 7 as the date for trial.

Only one witness was examined by the jury. She was Mrs. Annie Norris, an employee of the Western Union, who saw Roark shoot Miss Moore to death as she sat at her work in the big operating room.

Roark was transferred from the police station, where he has been held since the killing, to the Fulton county tower. There he will remain until the day of trial, when his fate will be decided by a jury in Fulton superior court.

Retains Lawyer.

Roark stated, however, while he was being transferred from the police station to the tower, that he had retained William Schley Howard as counsel, and that he had authorized him to issue a statement for him within the very near future.

Tuesday Roark, himself an employee of the Western Union, expressed regret over his action in killing Miss Moore. He has consistently refused to assign any reason for the slaying.

"I haven't made any statement to anybody," he said earlier in the day. "I have not denied what my wife has said and I have not confirmed it, and when I say I am sorry that is all that I can possibly say now."

Alonist Called In.

Dr. Newell Owens, well-known nerve and mental specialist, examined Roark at police station Tuesday morning, at the request of Attorney Howard, of the firm of Branch & Howard. Dr. Owens' visit was taken to mean that a plea of insanity will be advanced.

Mrs. Roark, youthful bride of the slayer, broke the silence she has maintained since the shooting Tuesday, when she issued a formal statement to the police, and made public a note which she received from her husband a few minutes before the slaying.

The note was written in pencil on a Western Union form sheet. It said:

"It has been a long time since I wrote you a note that I thought I would write you and tell you how much I love you and how sweet you are."

Mrs. Roark is confined to her bed at the home of relatives at 467 Bass street, and did not talk personally to a reporter.

Bath-Room Romance Wrecks Billy Murray's Marital Ship

BY ROINEY F. DUTCHER.

New York, December 16.—Billy Murray's love lullaby, relayed over the phonograph, have made thousands of girlish hearts flutter in the last 15 years, but the heart of Billy's own wife fluttered only for a big brass buttoned cop in Freeport, N. J.

This is the burden of the song that Billy is singing in a Brooklyn divorce court—the chorus of which tells about a romance between Mrs. Grace Murray and the cop, Billy Combs, under the shower-bath in the Murray home.

Witnesses say that while Murray was out singing such favorites as "You Gotta See Mama Every Night," "All Alone With You In a Little Rendezvous," and other romantic ditties, Mrs. Murray and Combs were giving him plenty of support at home, by suiting their actions to Billy's melodious words.

The shower-bath romance is de-

FRANCE HAS MADE NO DEFINITE MOVE TO FUND U. S. DEBT

Representative Crisp Denies Progress Toward Settlement as Result of Jussereand-Mellon Talks.

GEORGIAN DEFENDS BRITISH ATTITUDE

Praises Prompt Settlement of Debt to U. S. by Empire—Feels France Should Act Forthwith.

BY THOMAS L. STOKES.

Washington, December 16.—(Special.)—A true picture of the French debt situation was given to the house and the public Tuesday by Representative Crisp, of Georgia, democratic leader and member of the debt funding commission, who denied that France had made definite preparation to the United States relative to funding her four-billion-dollar war debt.

Crisp said that no representative of the French government had appeared before the debt funding commission, but that Ambassador Jusserand of France, had talked informally with Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, and that Mellon had called the commission together and laid before them what had happened.

Crisp said the commission hoped that a representative of the French government would appear soon and make a definite proposition of settlement.

Only Two Courses Open.

"Our commission, gentlemen," Crisp said, "has many almost insurmountable barriers to overcome. This foreign indebtedness is not like where one citizen or one corporation is indebted to another, where if the debtor does not pay you can go into court and get a judgment and recover your money. There are only two ways by which a foreign debt can be settled: one is voluntary payment and the other by arbitration of arms, and no sane man or woman in the United States wants this government to pursue the latter course. To me, it is unthinkable. Therefore, the only way your commission can act in these matters is through diplomatic channels presenting to foreign nations the fact that this government is anxious for the settlement of that indebtedness; and I assure you this has been done and is being done by the foreign debt funding commission."

"I do want to say to you, notwithstanding what you may have read in the press, that France has made no concrete, definite proposition to this government relative to funding her indebtedness. I have been a member of the commission for two years and during that period I have been representative of the French government as appeared before the commission. A few weeks ago the French ambassador had several conferences with Secretary Mellon, who is chairman of

Ice Cream Party Rewards Police In Burglar Hunt

Mrs. J. G. Heard, Jr., Will Wait for Key to House Next Time.

BY KENNETH L. EAGON.

This is the detective-thrilling yarn of the great pants window mystery, which has no key. It is a mystery, and a mob-finisher. It opens in one and closes in the alley. The characters appear in the disorder announced.

Mrs. J. G. Heard, Jr., of 1219 Piedmont avenue, wife of a dental surgeon, with offices in the Candler building, passed Tuesday night in an enjoyable automobile tour of the city, accompanied by her husband. Her husband had business which detained him in town. Mrs. Heard drove the car home alone.

Reaching the Heard home, she discovered that she had everything but the keys to the house. A house is a key without keys. Try it yourself. Ah! a happy idea. There was a window in the rear of the home. An ill wind leaves no window pane. The pane was paneless. It had went. So Mrs. Heard circumvented the house and began to crawl through the window, hurling some packages in before her to sound the way, as it were.

Although it's a phony burglar who plays Santa Claus and tosses gifts to his customers, a passing policeman, summoned by a neighbor, H. S. McNair, who lives next door at 1223 Piedmont avenue, who thought it was a lady prowler, stalked Mrs. Heard and slipped the bracelets on her. She did not think the ornaments were a holiday present. She was vexed, yes, verily.

Just as Mrs. Heard was going to step on the gas to maintain the Christmas spirit. It will be even warmer in Atlanta Wednesday, but along towards night the mercury will begin a flop and the advance agent of the cold wave now centering in the west will arrive here.

According to the local weather prognosticator, it will not become severely cold, but the change will be keenly felt, inasmuch as Atlanta's report of the great window case.

Votaw Is Slated To Join Sartain As Clean-up Victim

MARINES ORDERED TO QUELL MUTINY OF CHINESE TROOPS

American Interests Endangered When Troops Begin Rioting in Kalgan Stronghold.

Pekin, December 16.—A picked squad of American marines has been ordered to enter Kalgan, where Chinese soldiers mutinied Monday, burning and looting banks, stores and government buildings. The loss to American firms, including Standard Oil and the Liggett & Meyers Tobacco company was heavy. No foreigners have been injured but several Chinese were wounded.

The marines have been ordered to leave Peking at 5 o'clock Tuesday morning, but if the night passes without a recurrence of disorder the American sortie may be countermanded. Kalgan is 125 miles northwest of Peking and ordinarily marines would not be sent into the interior, but legation officials here are convinced that American lives will be endangered if rioting is permitted to occur again. Every effort will be made to prevent unpleasant incidents with the uniformed American fighters pass through purely Chinese territory.

Assurances from Peking officials that the Kalgan situation is well in hand have not satisfied foreigners here. Three business streets were burned during the Monday night riot and Chinese civilian officials fled from Kalgan before the fury of the soldiers.

An appeal direct to the legations in Peking called a formal request to be sent to the Peking government for the dispatch of Chinese troops to the surrounding city.

Kalgan is a well-fortified city and its arsenal could supply munitions with the supplies for a major offensive. There is a mixed Chinese-Mongol population of more than 60,000.

Stones then added that there was "favoritism, negligence and lack of discipline" at Atlanta. He indicated, too, that the narcotic evil had gained headway in the prison.

He was asked if George Remus, the millionaire bootlegger serving time from Chicago, was one of the beneficiaries of "favoritism" as was alleged in speeches in the house by Congressman William Upshaw, of Atlanta.

Stones hesitated and then said he would rather not discuss Remus. Sartain was a member of the parole board, the administration of which Attorney General Stone said "needs corrections."

Asked if Sartain's retirement indicated the retirement of Votaw, Stone hesitated again and then snapped back:

"I won't discuss Votaw now." Sartain's removal is regarded partly as an outgrowth of charges made in a speech in the house of representatives more than a year ago by Congressman William Upshaw, of Atlanta. He declared then that favoritism was being shown "millionaire bootleggers and other influential prisoners."

Remus Was Called.

As a result when the Wheeler committee investigating the former attorney general got under way, upon Upshaw's suggestion, Remus was brought to town in the custody of Sartain.

Remus testified Friday, May 16, although he declared then that he was being given unusual treatment. He testified his sleeping quarters were "in isolation" and the most desperate criminals of the country are located in such quarters. He said he lost 35 pounds. Sartain lost 23 pounds.

Daugherty's Appointees Likely to Fall Fast When Stone's Ax Is Given Full Play.

UPSHAW IS CREDITED WITH STARTING PROBE

Attorney General Says General Laxity and Increasing 'Dope' Evil Led to Discharge of Warden.

BY THOMAS L. STOKES.

Washington, December 16.—(Special.)—A. E. Sartain, who was dismissed Saturday by Attorney General Stone as warden of the Atlanta penitentiary, was negligent in administration of the prison, failed to maintain discipline and was guilty of favoritism among the prisoners, according to the attorney general.

Sartain's removal forecasts the retirement of Heber Votaw, brother-in-law of the late President Harding as superintendent of prisons. Votaw, like Sartain, was appointed by former Attorney General Daugherty on his own initiative.

Stone's action in removing Sartain is regarded in Washington as his first direct slap at his predecessor and also the first definite step towards

Turkeyless New York Seen As Fear of "Chicken Plague" Clamps Embargo on Poultry

Gotham Housewives in Panic as Railroads Set
Up Embargo on Ship-

States.

New York, December 16.—Fear of the "chicken plague" prevalent in certain mid-western states, has so intimidated the housewives of New York that all railroads serving this city today set up a solid embargo against order restored for the Christmas and New Year's trade.

Twenty-five carloads of chickens—approximately 450,000 pounds or nearly 100,000 fowl—were shipped westward today, because they had failed to pass inspection at New Jersey terminals, or because demurrage, shrinkage, cost of feeding and the demoralized state of the market promised a total loss to the receiver, who undertook to dispose of them in New York.

During the three-week holiday beginning December 15 last year New York city absorbed 879 carloads of live chickens, turkeys, ducks and geese—3,500,000 fowl or about 15,000,000 pounds.

At the same time the city absorbed 21,000,000 pounds of dressed poultry, and an unrecorded number of millions of pounds of cold storage fowl.

Commission men believed today that unless the wave of apprehension, which already has paralyzed the large Jewish and the smaller Italian mar-

'Kid' McCoy Used His Pockets To Store Mors' Gems, Claim

MRS. MORS SLAPPED HUSBAND, SAYS MAID

Los Angeles, December 16.—Further testimony regarding business and amorous relations between Kid McCoy and Mrs. Theresa Mors, has been advanced in the state's attempt to prove that McCoy murdered the woman in a rage at the prospect of losing her love and the easy living that went with it.

Mrs. Florence Emden, wife of Mrs. Mors' business adviser, declared from the witness stand Tuesday that McCoy took personal charge of his sweetheart's jewelry.

"Once, when they both came to visit me, Mrs. Mors asked Selby to show me her jewels," Mrs. Emden said. "He produced them from his pocket and after showing them, put them back in his pocket again."

Marie Shrader, a bank stenographer, testified that McCoy had rented a safe deposit box "Norman Selby" and that he had stored valuables there.

Call Mrs. Mors' Maid.

In order to show that McCoy disrupted marital harmony in the Mors household, the prosecution called Sally Teague, colored maid to the stand. She was asked whether McCoy's presence seemed to create any feeling between husband and wife.

"I've never seen Mr. Mors hit Mrs. Mors, but I've seen Mrs. Mors slap her husband," the maid testified.

She said that McCoy had called at the house, but could not remember whether he had stayed over night.

"Once he was there when I went to bed, but he was gone when I got up in the morning," she said.

Mors To Testify Today.

Miss Frances Pearlstein, a witness for more than an hour, verified other statements concerning McCoy's "wild-west" raid on the antique shop.

"She's the only woman I ever loved," McCoy said, according to Miss Pearlstein.

Defense Attorney George Shreve questioned the secretary regarding the movements of Mors on the night of the murder.

YALE AND HARVARD TO CROSS WORDS FOR COLLEGE TITLE

New York, December 16.—For the sakes of dear old Yale and Harvard, undergraduates of those two schools will cross words on a checkered field at a new York hotel on January 4.

The meeting will be the first intercollegiate crossword competition.

Proceers of the struggle will go to the Byrn Mawr Music Foundation and the City Music League, which show seem appropriate. After Yale and Harvard have tilted pencils, young ladies from Smith, Wellesley and Bryn Mawr will meet in a three cornered contest.

Then the grand finale will take place in which the robust son of Yale or Harvard will wrestle with a sturdy daughter of Smith, Wellesley or Bryn Mawr and try to throw her.

There will be three judges on hand to keep the party from getting rough.

TWO AGED VETERANS ARE BURNED TO DEATH

Beauvoir, Miss., December 16.—Two Confederate veterans were burned to death and two were injured when fire destroyed a dormitory of the Jefferson Davis Soldiers' home at 2:35 a. m. today.

The dead: F. J. Sharpe, 78, Columbus, Miss., and J. P. Hunter, 80, Laurel, Miss.

The injured: Joe Sanders, Lauderdale, Miss., feet burned; Clement Cox, Harrison county, feet and hands burned.

Twenty were asleep in the one-story frame building when the structure was discovered in flames. Volunteers fought their way through the smoke and carried the veterans to safety.

Sharpe and Hunter could not be reached and their charred bodies were found in the building.

The fire was the second tragedy to visit the old soldiers this month. An epidemic of dysentery believed to have been caused by infected milk took the lives of six veterans and sent about 36 more to the hospital for treatment.

WIFE KILLS HERSELF WHILE HUSBAND PLAYS

New York, December 16.—Mrs. Dorothy Stothart, wife of Herbert Stothart, a composer, ended her life by drinking poison early today at her home while her husband was at his piano.

The composer said that last evening they had quarreled but had been reconciled. At 4:15 o'clock this morning Stothart sat down at his piano and in a few minutes his wife entered and knelt in front of a chair. When he went to her, he said, he saw she was ill and called an ambulance.

Mrs. Stothart died before she could be removed to a hospital.

BODY OF EDWARDS' TEAPOT DOME TRIAL WIFE IS EXHUMED DELAY IS SOUGHT

Montgomery, Ala., December 16.—The body of Mrs. Annie Lou Edwards, wife of Dr. George T. Edwards, who was indicted in Jefferson county today charged with murder of his wife, was exhumed here yesterday and the viscera sent to Dr. B. B. Ross, state chemist, at Auburn.

Dr. Ross stated that he could not say as to what organs had been sent to him for examination as the package had not been unwrapped. He said that chemicals had been prepared and that the examination would be begun immediately. Post mortem examinations usually require only a few days, officials said, although it was stated that analysis might require several weeks.

The exhumation was accomplished with the utmost secrecy and Montgomery officials stated that they withheld comment at the request of Jefferson county authorities. Coroner Jeffery said that he was not present at the autopsy.

The order for the exhumation was issued by Judge Crossland, probate judge of Montgomery county, to Deputy Sheriff Hill, of Jefferson county. Judge Crossland, who at first refused to say whether he had issued a permit, later stated that it was issued about 9 o'clock yesterday at the request of the solicitor and the deputy coroner of Jefferson county. Two Birmingham physicians, whose names he said he was unable to give, performed the autopsy.

The viscera was taken to the state chemist at Auburn by Deputy Sheriff Hill, of Jefferson county, who was accompanied by W. L. Whetstone, brother-in-law of Mrs. Edwards.

WEEKLY STEAMERS WILL LINK MIAMI AND PHILADELPHIA

Baltimore, December 16.—Beginning the latter part of this month weekly steamer sailings between Philadelphia and Miami, Fla., will be inaugurated, the Merchants and Miners' Transportation company announced today. The service will be combined passenger and freight.

which was unknown to the grand jury.

A report was made by the jury at Bessemer after deliberating for a day and a half during which time they visited the Edwards home in Fairfield where the killing occurred.

Officials here would not confirm dispatches from Montgomery that Mrs. Edwards' body had been exhumed and the viscera sent to the Alabama Polytechnic Institute for a chemical investigation.

Greater Interest in Schools And Consolidating Systems Badly Needed, States Sutton

Amusement Should Be Provided for School Children in Leisure Time, Says Superintendent.

Interesting persons of ability in public schools, and then effecting a consolidation of city and county school systems, was declared by Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of Atlanta schools, as the only salvation for the city's school system, in an address delivered Tuesday at a meeting of the Rotary club at the Capital City club.

Lack of interest of the people in public institutions of all kinds is one of our biggest problems, Mr. Sutton said. "Many do not even vote, and a number of good men who now criticize the school department refuse to run for office or take an active interest in public affairs. It is extremely important that persons of ability interest themselves in school affairs. If they would consent to hold office, many intrigues and petty politics which enter into the system could be eliminated."

Consolidation Only Remedy.
"Consolidation of city and county school systems into a metropolitan school district, to be operated under a special school tax and under direction of a school board is the only solution, and we must as well face it."

In his address, which dealt with all major problems of the school department, Mr. Sutton outlined them in four sections—improving school grounds for recreation; the housing problem; current expenses; and interesting capable persons in the school department.

"Criming, especially that committed by comparatively young men and women, has increased enormously during the last few years," he stated. "In fact, 83 cents of every dollar stolen is taken by criminals under the age of twenty-one."

"One of the principal reasons is that no amusement has been provided for leisure time of school children. Even if it was necessary to eliminate some other feature of school work to provide recreation and playgrounds for Atlanta's school children, I would favor it, as the children's disintegration of character is rapid when they have nothing to do in their spare time but find their way into mischief."

Playgrounds Are Needed.
"Atlanta now has between 75 and 80 acres of lands, owned by the school department, and which either is covered with portable school buildings, or which never has been put into condition for use as playgrounds. Between $150,000 and $160,000 is needed for establishment of proper playgrounds for the city's school children, and each school should have a teacher whose duty would be supervision of the school's playground between 2 o'clock in the afternoon and dark."

Dealing with the housing problems, Mr. Sutton described the terrible conditions now in existence, and for which, he said, there is no remedy other than erection of new buildings. At present, he asserted, 5,150 boys are forced to attend classes held in auditoriums, basements, churches, libraries and other rented rooms, while 5,163 students are using portable class rooms, making a total of more than 10,350 assigned to non-standard class rooms.

Housing Facilities.
In addition to that number, Mr. Sutton said, it is imperative that housing facilities be provided for a number of other students. The Davis street, Stewart avenue, Frank L. Stanton and Ormewood schools are "fire traps," he said, and new schools, which would cost approximately $150,000 each, should be built at once. At least 800 students will be without housing space at the Henry W. Grady Senior High school for boys next year, he added. It is expected that approximately 1,000 will enter the school through graduation from junior high schools, while about 200 will graduate. A new unit at the school, estimated cost of which is $400,000, is an absolute necessity, according to Mr. Sutton's statement.

Practically the same condition prevails at the Hoke Smith Junior High school, Mr. Sutton continued. That school has no building of its own, and many students are quartered in the old Hill Street school, while others are forced to attend classes at Commercial High school.

Rotary Asked To Aid.
Mr. Sutton appealed to members of the Rotary club, as representative business men, to help decide where the money needed for construction of the new buildings will be raised, and whether by flotation of a bond issue or through an extra school tax.

The increase in enrollment is largely responsible for the larger operating costs," the superintendent stated, "as in the past three and one-half years, the school attendance in Atlanta has increased from 29,000 to 52,000. In spite of all that, this city's schools are operated at an average cost per capita of between $45 and $50, as compared with the average of other southern cities, which is $67, and with the average of other cities of Atlanta's size throughout the nation of $86."

Change from the 11 to 13-year system was given by Mr. Sutton as one of the principal reasons for increased school population. During the last few years, before graduation from high school, a child goes through kindergarten, six grades of elementary school work, three years in a junior high school, and three years in a senior high school. He explained that the number of high school students increased from 4,000 to between 9,000 and 10,000 during the last five years, and stated that the largely increased number of high school students adds greatly to operating expenses.

Addition of a number of new schools, including a negro high school; several night schools; and the Atlanta Opportunity school, also have increased current expenses, it was pointed out.

Mr. Sutton stated that Atlanta now is so far behind its normal school program because it has failed to keep pace with the increased population during the last 20 years, concluding with the statement that it appears impossible to meet the problems with next year's current revenues.

DR. GILLIAM FINED FOR PART IN FIGHT IN POLITICAL MEET
Dr. W. Y. Gilliam, chairman of the republican state central committee, was fined $25 Tuesday in Judge Andy Calhoun's division of the Atlanta criminal court, after a jury had found him guilty of assault and battery. The charge was made by J. Marian Thomson, local real estate man, and grew out of a fist fight at a republican meeting several weeks ago.

At the meeting, which was held in the negro Odd Fellow's hall, on Auburn avenue, it was brought out that the statement that it appears impossible to meet the problems with next year's current revenues.

Coolidge-Wilbur Difference On Naval Policy May Cost Wilbur His Official Head

Nice Judicial Job May Be Used to Sugar-Coat Peremptory Demand for Resignation.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

Washington, December 16.—Such a vital difference has developed between President Coolidge and Secretary of the Navy Wilbur over the naval policy that a cabinet vacancy is looked for unless Wilbur modifies his position.

President Coolidge has become concerned over big navy propaganda emanating from a number of sources. It is coming from certain private sources which are suspected of working for interests which sell materials to the navy. It is coming also from the Annapolis clique—the admirals of the navy who naturally want to see the fleet expanded. Secretary Wilbur has not resisted this propaganda as the president would have liked.

The secretary recently told congress that the only way to maintain the treaty ratio with reference to submarines, scout cruisers and other types not covered by the naval limitation treaty, "is by a competitive building program which would require us to lay down and construct ship for ship, submarine for submarine, a fleet equal to that of Great Britain and superior to that of Japan as five to three. He told the house naval affairs sub-committee a lot of things about the supposedly poor condition of the fleet, the bad boilers in six of the older battleships actually gave the United States a ratio of four instead of five as contemplated by the 5-5-3 schedule in the naval limitation treaty, he said.

Is Second Difference.

On two occasions within a week, the president has indicated to friends his concern and disapproval of extravagant big navy propaganda which he regards as nothing more than "jingoism" and having no relation to the real problem of adequate defense which he favors. He has twice reiterated the declaration against competition in armaments contained in the annual message.

Wilbur is scheduled to appear before the house naval appropriations sub-committee Wednesday to discuss the whole question of naval efficiency again. It will soon be a subject of warm debate on the floor of both house and senate.

This is the second time within a few months that Wilbur has been the subject of concern at the white house. During the presidential campaign, he was jerked from the stump to prevent delivery of a speech which was regarded as indiscreet. An advance copy of it fell into the hands of the republican national committee and President Coolidge was asked to summon Wilbur back to Washington immediately.

May Dangle Bench Job.

The day after election he issued a statement declaring that Coolidge's big majority in California was complete vindication of his appointment to the cabinet.

But there is a good deal of sympathy for Wilbur.

pathy for Wilbur. He was taken "high" by President Coolidge from the California supreme court. He is an Annapolis man and therefore especially susceptible to the powerful ring of admirals at the navy department. Stepping into the complicated job ignorant of most details, he must depend on naval officers for most of his information. It is a rare secretary that can maintain his own viewpoint against them.

It is possible that some time next spring Wilbur will be provided with an attractive judicial appointment which probably would be more to his liking and more suited to his temperament than the navy portfolio.

Mr. Kagy explained the origin and development of Gyro, and stated that the organization sprang from the desire of city as members of established clubs changed their residence and formed new clubs in their adopted homes. The suggestion that The Atlanters affiliate with Gyro came from Mr. L. Kane, a member of the club, who became a member of Gyro when in Winnipeg, Canada. Decision will be made at a meeting in the near future.

The musical program at the luncheon Tuesday was provided by the Georgia Railway quartette and the Ritz Harmony boys. The attendance prize was won by H. S. Harvard.

Bulldog's Body Rests In Silk-Lined Casket Near Master's Home

Patchogue, L. I., December 16.—Few persons have had their funeral arrangements more carefully attended to than "Boy," a French bulldog owned by Professor Mortimer Stutser, of the University of Michigan.

The dog's body was shipped here from Ann Arbor, Mich., in a silk-lined casket and was buried in a carefully made grave near the summer home of Professor Stutser. An undertaker prepared the body for burial and inclosed the handsome casket in a sealed metal case.

LEAVES JAIL TO WED

Mrs. Thelma Markham Marrs G. D. Parr.

While waiting in Fulton county tower for her case to come before the federal grand jury, Mrs. Thelma Markham, who is being held on a federal narcotic charge, Tuesday at noon was married to G. D. Parr, an applicant for the marine service at Parris Island.

The ceremony took place in the office of A. A. Owens, chief of peace. Mrs. Markham was accompanied from the tower by a United States deputy marshal and Mr. Parr.

She was bound over by United States Commissioner Joe Abbott last Saturday and committed to jail pending a hearing of her case before the grand jury. It is expected that her case will come up today, and she has announced that she will enter a plea.

Parr is an applicant for the marine service, according to Lieutenant Clifford Prichard, in charge of the marine corps of the southeastern district. He stated that Parr recently made application. The groom told reporters that he intended "to stick by his bride" in spite of the fact that she is charged with violating the Harrison narcotic act.

'Stool Pigeon' Held On Perjury Charge In Unique Tangle

BY ROBERT PARKS.

When Clarence Hart turned "stool pigeon" for federal narcotic officers "to get his girl friends out of trouble," he immediately got himself into trouble and at present is at Fulton tower under $1,000 bond on a charge of perjury.

From the time that Hart voluntarily offered his services to narcotic agents to "implicate the persons who sold dope to his two girl friends" to the hour Tuesday when United States Commissioner Joe Abbott bound him over to the federal grand jury, his fate has been strangely twisted.

Volunteered Services.

Last Friday federal narcotic agents arrested two young women in a downtown hotel on charges of possessing narcotics. With Hart's promise that he would "get the men who sold them the stuff" the agents released the young women. Hart, with marked money in his pockets, set out on his quest. Federal agents declare that Hart returned with a quantity of cocaine and told them he paid B. L. Sanders $50 for the dope and secured it from Sam Dougherty in Joe Morris' apartment on Forrest avenue.

The Sanders, Dougherty and Morris trio was arrested and brought before Commissioner Abbott Monday morning. But when Hart, chief witness for the government, took the witness stand things took a strange turn. Hart denied that he bought the dope from either Morris, Sanders or Dougherty and denied that he even told officers that he did, asserting that he "bought it from a negro woman whose name he did not know." After the cases against the three men were discussed, narcotic officers immediately arrested Hart on warrants charging perjury and possession of narcotics.

Clings to Story.

Tuesday he was given a preliminary hearing on the perjury charge. Despite the narcotic officers' testimony to the contrary, and in the face of District Attorney Clint W. Hager's rigid grilling, Hart clung to his original statement that he bought the dope "from a negro woman."

"The Bible says that you can't serve two masters," said Commissioner Abbott to Hart. "I am of the opinion that you have been imposed upon by some one, but I feel it my duty to bind you over."

COMMITTEE STUDYING BEELER TRAFFIC PLAN

Each member of the special councilman committee considering the relief petition of the Georgia Railway and Power company Tuesday afternoon was given a copy of the complete report of the John A. Beeler organization, Alderman J. R. Bachman, chairman, announced following a brief executive session.

The report is so comprehensive that members of the committee will be given some time to study the report, recommendations will not be made until the entire report has been discussed, Mr. Bachman said. He also announced that the entire paper will be furnished newspapers for publication Sunday.

Mr. Bachman, although still refusing to give out contents of the report, confirmed the fact that details, as published by The Constitution Monday, were essentially correct.

NO ACTION TAKEN IN FLOGGING CASE

Marietta, Ga., December 16.—(Special.)—The special Cobb county grand jury, impaneled to consider the cases of Oscar Fricks, Jr., 14, and Ernest Mitchell, 21, of Austell, charged with an attack upon a young woman near Austell late in November, met here today, but did not return any indictments.

The special grand jury also considered the case of Charles J. Shelverton, Jr., son of Austell's former mayor, who was lured from his home late Thursday by 14 unmasked men, who whipped him and left him buried beneath a pile of rubbish in a lonely spot on the Powder Springs-Mapleton road. No action was taken in either case. Sheriff Sanderson, of Cobb county, said tonight that he expected action in both cases at Wednesday's session.

The two cases are linked in that the night riders who took young Shelverton out and whipped him told him that he had talked about the girl who is alleged to have been attacked by Fricks and Mitchell.

East Point, Ga., December 16.—(Special.)—C. H. Livsey, with 383 votes, was elected mayor here today over D. A. McDuffie, who received 255 votes in a run-over election.

In the first election held Tuesday, December 9, Livsey led, but did not get a majority over two opponents, which necessitated the run-over election.

Friends of both candidates were active today, and out of 800 votes registered 618 were cast. The new mayor and council will be installed the first week in February.

Vote on Postal Pay Increase Cleverly Blocked When Foes Use Pact on Shoals as Foil

Senator Sterling Is Successful in Staging Debate on Motion to Override Ruling.

Washington, December 16.—Another unsuccessful attempt was made in the senate today to bring a vote upon President Coolidge's veto of the postal salary increase bill. Those desiring to override the veto succeeded by a vote of 51 to 30 in getting the issue before the senate, but the parliamentary situation prevented a decision and the bill went back to its place on the table.

The move for immediate consideration of the veto was made by Senator Ashurst, democrat, Arizona, during the opening hour after Chairman Sterling, of the postoffice committee, had introduced a bill proposing increased postal rates in line with recommendations by Postmaster General New. The Arizona senator objected to the second reading of the Sterling bill, thus preventing the measure being referred to a committee.

Vote on Veto Checked.
As a result of today's skirmish, the postal pay situation is practically at a stalemate, Senator Ashurst said after the Sterling bill cannot be referred to a committee for action until routine legislative business again is in order. Likewise, the veto measure cannot be called up in the face of unanimous consent agreements giving right of way to the Muscle Shoals bill and then to the Isle of Pines treaty, until the same opportunity is afforded.

Representative Stevenson, democrat South Carolina, took up discussion of the postal salaries bill in the house and declared the measure was "being chloroformed" by looking it with a proposal calling for increased rates. He said it had been estimated that a $67,000,000 surplus would occur in the treasury this year, and that the proposed increase in salaries would amount to only $60,000,000.

Sterling's Filibuster Wins.
Thirteen republicans voted today with 24 democrats and two farmer-labor members to bring the veto before the senate, while three democrats opposed immediate action. Supporters of the president's position declared that several senators who recorded themselves as for disposition of the postal pay bill would have opposed a move to override the veto.

Mrs. Irene Christian, also of Ina, testified that she often saw Hight and Sweetin. Hight, she said, "went to the Sweetin home after Mr. Sweetin had gone to the mines to work." She said "Hight would go around to the back door."

The funeral sermon over Sweetin, preached by Hight, was related by Vivian Taylor.

Mr. Hight, in his opening remarks, she testified, "said he felt unworthy to preach the sermon. He prayed to God for a chance for this man and then told how he had saved his soul on his death bed."

ADmiral NULTON NAMED NEW HEAD OF NAVAL ACADEMY
Washington, December 16.—Rear Admiral Louis M. Nulton has been selected by the navy department to succeed Rear Admiral Henry B. Wilson as superintendent of the naval academy at Annapolis, where the latter retired from active service next February. Admiral Nulton now is in command of Battleship Division No. 3 in the Pacific waters.

Admiral Nulton was appointed to the naval academy from Virginia. He was commandant of midshipmen at the naval academy in the war period, later being assigned to command the battleship Pennsylvania, then flag ship of Admiral Wilson, who commanded the fleet during the war. He was in command at the navy yard, New York, and of various cruises and successively of the battleships Maine, Texas, Ohio and Wisconsin before he commanded the Pennsylvania.

His last east coast command was the fourth naval district, Philadelphia, which included duty as commandant of the Philadelphia yard. He was commissioned a permanent rear admiral in 1921.

HIGHT-SWEETIN 'GOINGS-ON' AIRED

Mt. Vernon, Ills., December 16.—The "goings-on" of Lawrence M. Hight, when he was a Methodist clergyman at Ina, Ill., and Mrs. Elsie Sweetin, member of his congregation, were related from the witness stand Tuesday in the trial of the pair charged with murdering their mates.

Mrs. Clinton, of Ina, was called to the stand by the prosecution shortly after it had lost its fight to introduce into the testimony the confession which Mrs. Sweetin made last summer after her arrest.

Mrs. Clinton declared the conduct of "Brother Hight and Mrs. Sweetin was scandalous."

Used Love Signal.
When this was ruled out, Mrs. Clinton then declared that "Brother Hight used to signal Mrs. Sweetin from a tie pile that stood a short distance from the Sweetin home."

"It was easy to see him from our house," said Mrs. Clinton. "He would get on top of the pile and wigwag to Mrs. Sweetin."

Evidence was then submitted regarding the conduct of Hight and Mrs. Sweetin at a camp meeting a few weeks after Wilford Sweetin's death at which Hight was one of the exhorters.

Mrs. Clinton testified that she attended the camp meeting and frequently observed Hight and Sweetin. The large building in which services were held, and "go north." Shortly after this, said Mrs. Clinton, "Mrs. Sweetin would get up and go north, too."

Mrs. Coursey says that she saved up $200 here to make the trip to get the children.

DEMURRER SUSTAINED IN PUBLICITY CASE
Baltimore, Md., December 16.—Federal Judge Morris A. Soper today sustained the demurrer of the Baltimore Post to the indictment charging illegal publication of income tax returns.

The demurrer admitted the facts set forth in the indictment—that the Post published the tax payments of the five persons named therein, but contended no law was violated.

Judge Soper held that by the act of 1924 it was plain that congress determined to abandon the policy of secrecy from the general public concerning the amount of taxes paid.

United States Attorney Woodcock, who handled the case for the government, said the question of an appeal would be decided by the department of justice at Washington.

Washington, December 16.—The United States attorney at Baltimore will be instructed immediately to file an appeal from the ruling of Federal Judge Soper in the Baltimore Daily Post tax publication case.

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general, explained that the department had no other interest in the question than that of determining exactly what congress had intended to do.

Educators See SOVIET PROTEST DRAWS NO REPLY

Washington, December 16.—If George Tchitcherine, soviet minister of foreign affairs, expected to lead the way to an exchange of communications between the Washington and Moscow governments by complaining in a telegram that the coast guard cutter, Bear, committed a violation of international law when it affixed a brass plate to a rock on Chukotsk peninsula in 1920, he is doomed to disappointment.

It was stated authoritatively today that no answer to the minister's telegram, quoted in Moscow dispatches last night, would be made by this government.

Tchitcherine's protest, it was learned, was received recently; the incident was investigated and was automatically closed on the findings of the investigators.

The facts as reported to the state department by the coast guard service revealed that the Bear affixed a plate in the rock while making a survey of waters in the vicinity of the Bering Straits. The survey was for scientific purposes and the plate was to indicate only that the waters had been surveyed by the Bear.

It also was shown that at the time the Bear committed the "lawless act" complained of by Tchitcherine, the territory about Chukotsk peninsula was controlled by the China government or the so-called Far Eastern republic, and with which the United States then had informal relations. The authorities in control assented to the survey which the Bear made and gave permission for it to affix the plate.

No comment was made on Tchitcherine's statement that similar "lawless acts" would be sternly repressed by the soviet government.

Plates similar to that left by the Bear on the Siberian coast have been placed on foreign soil in many places as a work of general service, so that all who pass may observe and compensate their compasses from the charted records. One standard form of plate is used whether on or off American soil, and it bears a warning for domestic consumption only, setting forth the penalty for removal. The coast guard has performed much of this work in Arctic waters especially and officials here said today that despite the Russian protest the work would go on.

FORTY-FOUR WORD NOTE GRAVED IN NEEDLE EYE
Washington, December 16.—A 44-word letter engraved in the eye of a needle has been received by the Smithsonian institution. The microscopic message, which was sent to the institution for display before the annual meeting of the board of regents, is so small it has to be magnified 80 times before it can be read. It measures exactly 1-11, 250th of a square inch.

The text of the letter follows: "This is a crude, hurriedly prepared large sample of micro-engraving. I trust it will contain a amount of interest to the regents and regret that time prevents preparing an exhibition more worthy of their inspection. Believe me to be, yours cordially, Alfred McEwen."

First Paint Coat Since 1882 Asked For City Hall
Atlanta's city hall, located at Marietta and Forsyth streets, next year will be given its first coat of paint since 1882, if plans of Glenn Dewberry, custodian, are carried out. He stated Tuesday that he will ask the 1925 finance committee for $15,000 with which to paint the outside of the building, and for repainting and redecorating of the entire inside, in addition to making numerous necessary repairs. He also will ask $7,000 for a new elevator, which, he says, is badly needed for the building.

According to the custodian's plan, the entire outside of the structure will be given its first real bath in more than forty years, and cleaning of the granite work and staining of the brick will give the appearance of a new building.

If the money is appropriated, the entire inside of the city building will be repainted and redecorated, and new lighting systems installed in several offices. A number of other repairs, needed for the past several years, also will be made, it is stated. Part of the building already has been cleaned and decorated, but shortage of funds has held the work up.

The new elevator also is a real necessity, it is claimed, as the one in use at present, which has been used in the building for many years, is becoming so old and unreliable that it has given much mechanical trouble recently. The new machine would be used for passengers, while the old one would be operated as a freight and relief machine.

SHRINE CEREMONIAL TO BE HELD TONIGHT
A large class of unregenerate sons of the desert will cross the hot sands to Mecca at a ceremonial session of Yarnab Temple to be held at the Auditorium tonight. This will be the last ceremonial of the year and Potentate Charles A. Bowen and his aids plan on making it a memorable occasion in the history of the Temple.

Nobles have been requested to be in their seats at 7:30 as the entertainment will begin at that hour. The annual meeting of the Temple for the election of officers and other important business will be held in January, in accordance with an imperial law passed at the last session of the Imperial Council changing the end of the fiscal year from November 30 to December 31. Another Imperial edict requires nobles to wear the fez at all shrine meetings.

Visit of Grand Duchess Of Russia Comes to Close

BY ALICE ROHE.
New York, December 15.—The visit of the Grand Duchess Victoria Feodorovna, wife of the Grand Duke Cyril, claimant to the Russian throne, who came to America as guest of the Monday Night Opera club in connection with its efforts to make the world safe for society, is at an end.

It wound up Monday night with a farewell reception at Sherry's, where strong men took the royal hand and kissed it reverently and women curtsied low in the more or less royal presence as they have been doing for the past week.

It's much harder to interview a visiting grand duchess than it is to interview a queen in her own home town. After interviewing Queen Maria of Rumania in her palace at Bucharest and Victoria Feodorovna in New York I know. The code of social etiquette set up by the Monday Opera club is frightfully embarrassing to a common person. With considerable relief, one noticed the withdrawal of three armed detectives, the male representative of the Monday Opera club and others there to protect the grand duchess from vulgar social errors.

Learned Many Things.
The duchess dodged the favor faire, well informed. I have learned a lot since I've been here. Many things more than you know. "But this movement to restore social forms, do you really think it so important in a world where so great a social upheaval is taking place?" "Etiquette does matter. It is tremendously important. It can't be brushed by any state."

"What do you think of the present government in Russia?" "The grand duchess, who does not possess Sister Marie's humor or quick wit, saw no relevance in the question. "Oh," she sighed, "I don't think people appreciate the condition there now."

Kind and Sympathetic.
"What sentiment did you find here concerning Russia?" I asked. "The most kindly and sympathetic for all the things Russia has been through," she replied. "The grand duchess added a lot of new things about her visit here. "I loved every minute of my stay. Everyone was so kind. I thank them all and also the press."

Then she shook hands and seemed to expect no more of a curtesy or genuflection than was given. Nearly 18,000 licenses (state and county) for fishing were issued by the state game and fish department during 1923. The 1924 total will far eclipse that figure, it is said.

Wilhelm To Have Thin Christmas; Exchequer Is Low

Berlin, December 15.—Former Kaiser Wilhelm, the tre-chopping war lord of Doorn, is entering upon a thin Christmas. His imperial majesty will not be able to send any Christmas presents this year, according to his associates.

The imperial exchequer is low. Prussia pays Wilhelm a measly $12,500 a month, it was explained, and Wilhelm's family, official and other-ly pensioned persons. The monthly pension barely suffices to meet the demands of necessities.

Even the birthday of Princess Hermine, the kaiser's second wife, which falls on day before Christmas, will be observed just as Christmas, with Princess Hermine's children, of which there are several, are wondering whether the imperial poverty renders stocking hanging a useless bother. They hope not.

Board Praises Dr. A. M. Soule And Unanimously Approves Salary at Special Meeting

President of State College of Agriculture Is Rendering Great Service, Statement Says.

Athens, Ga., December 16.—(Special.)—Following a special called meeting of the board of trustees of the State College of Agriculture held here today, the board gave out a statement, signed by all members, in which it was declared that the salary paid Dr. Andrew M. Soule, president of the college, was not excessive for the services he gave in return and affirmed the complete legality of the payment of that salary by the board.

Concluding the statement says: "The Georgia State College of Agriculture is paying its president a salary that is just and reasonable and it is fortunate in retaining his services at those figures. For that salary, President Soule is rendering loyal, efficient, invaluable services, beyond the monetary compensation he receives, and the money of the college is expended with care and with economy in every department of its useful activities."

The meeting of the board was called by Governor Clifford Walker, following criticism of the legality of Dr. Soule's salary and the wisdom of the purchase of two automobiles of expense.

Governor Walker, in his letter to the board of trustees, expressed his appreciation of the valuable services rendered the college and the state by Dr. Soule, and his confidence in a fair salary for these services. "In other words," wrote the governor, "if the board of trustees deems the salary now being paid Dr. Soule to be just and reasonable I shall not criticize them but commend them for naming such a salary."

After setting forth the belief that the total salary received by Dr. Soule was in no way in excess of his value to the institution and, in fact, compared with salaries paid chief executive officers of colleges of equal size and rank, was low, the board expressed its gratification that the state is able to retain Dr. Soule as president at that figure. Members also explained the legality of their action in providing this salary. In this respect, the statement says:

"The general assembly of Georgia in the general appropriation acts of 1921 and 1922 made the appropriation to the college of agriculture with certain conditions attached thereto touching the salary of the president of the college. These conditions did not fix the salary of the president, but declared that only so much could be paid from two certain sources, to wit, the state appropriation and the money appropriated by the federal government. They laid no restriction on the payment of salary above that amount from any funds other than those two."

Board Within Rights. "The board was fully aware of the conditions attached to the appropriations made in those two general appropriation acts, accepted them, though not approving them, and has lived up to the conditions thus imposed. The board continued to exercise its unquestioned right to fix the salary of the president of the college, a right given by the legislature and in no way changed or abrogated by conditions attached to the appropriations in the acts of 1921 and 1922, and consequently continued to pay the same salary that had been paid in the past to President Soule."

"This was done only after the board had thoroughly investigated the question of the legality of its proceedings and satisfied itself that the salary of $8,000 per annum could be paid without violation of the law."

"The board is satisfied that the section of the general appropriation act applies only to funds appropriated by the state and federal governments. The money received for the training of the rehabilitation soldiers is not appropriated to the state college of agriculture, but is earned by the institution through contractual relations with the federal government, and therefore, the $3,000 of President Soule's salary paid from that source could not be in violation of the law."

The meeting of the board Tuesday morning was attended by all members, except three who were unavoidably absent. In addition to board members, Justice Richard B. Russell, president of the board of trustees of the University of Georgia, and Howell C. Erwin, chairman of the prudential committee of the university board, were present.

Brown Praises Soule. Among members of the board at the meeting was J. J. Brown, state commissioner of agriculture, who took occasion to say that he had been highly impressed by the action of the board in fixing Dr. Soule's salary and in the purchase of the two automobiles under discussion; that the salary of Dr. Soule was lower than that paid many other officials for less service; that the state department of agriculture fully recognized the great and effective work of Dr. Soule as president of the college, and that the college has now and will continue to have at all times the hearty cooperation of the state department in the great work it is doing for the people of Georgia and the entire south.

Referring to the wisdom of the purchase of the two automobiles, as questioned in the auditor's report, where the suggestion was made that cars of a cheaper make might be more economical, the board in its statement declared that the purchase was made only after the most careful investigation.

"These cars," says the statement, "are used by the extension division and go into every section of the 60,000 square miles of the state, carrying the latest and best information on hundreds of subjects direct to the farmers of the state. They were purchased for $3,000, a little more than one new car would have cost. Together they have already covered more than 50,000 miles and today, after all that service, have an invariable value of $3,000 and are insured for that amount. They never go out with only one person, frequently they carry four or five. But averaging just one person per trip they have proved to be fully as cheap, if not cheaper, than railroad transportation, and the average cost per mile has not been over five cents. The total number of people carried on all trips be taken into consideration, the cost per mile is greatly reduced below that figure. And all of this is outside the consideration of the time saved and the effectiveness of prompt service."

That could not be rendered to hundreds of rural districts by using the railway train.

Thorough Investigation. "The board does not purchase automobiles without due consideration. It always has been the policy of the board to buy machines that give the best and the most economical service. The cost of these cars, together with their upkeep, and considering the service secured through their use, is no greater than that of the cheaper cars."

Before raising the two questions regarding Dr. Soule's salary and the automobile purchase, the state auditor's report said, in regard to its audit of the accounts of the college of agriculture, "the books are well kept and disbursements are sustained by proper vouchers. The distribution of expenses hereafter will be in accordance with suggestions made to Mr. Reed, treasurer, and agreed to by him."

Justice Russell, during the meeting, stated that the entire amount paid Dr. Soule was in no way in excess of the proper amount for the services rendered, and that if it were necessary to increase this total to even larger figures in order to retain Dr. Soule's service, such increase would be, in his opinion, money well expended. Howell C. Erwin also stated that he thoroughly endorsed the action of the trustees and agreed with the statement made by Judge Russell.

Services Enumerated. In reciting services rendered the college and the state by Dr. Soule since he became president in 1907 the board listed the following things accomplished and being carried out by the college under his scientific leadership: "Organized club work in Georgia."

"Direct extension work; 109 men agents; 84 women agents."

"Reaches more than 200,000 citizens annually."

"Value of service to state each year exceeds $12,000,000."

"Returns $44 to state for each $1 received."

"Gifts to state in seventeen years: 'Center of agricultural information and research; 'A system of agricultural education; 'A standard of education for women; 'Established coeducation for women; 'Over 420 experts and specialists trained to serve the state; 'A plan for extension teaching in agriculture and home economics; 'A boys' and girls' club organization; 'A group of 52 vocational teachers of agriculture and home economics; 'A purebred live stock policy and a diversified farm program; 'The agricultural engineer, forester and veterinarian; 'An agricultural library containing more than 300 different bulletins and pamphlets in twelve volumes; 'An interest in landscape gardening and home beautification; 'College No. 1 cotton; 'A physical and chemical soil survey; 'The discovery and delineation of Georgia bright tobacco belt; 'Camp Wilkins, the only institution of its kind in America, where 2,000 Georgia boys and girls are undergoing training each year; 'Erected buildings and assembled equipment worth $800,000 towards which the state appropriated $110,000 in 17 years; 'Has advertised Georgia's possibilities and opportunities to the world; 'Has given formal instruction to 13,901 Georgia men and women on the campus at Athens; 'Has taken the 60,000 square miles in Georgia for its campus; 'What It Does—Radiates from the center to the circumference of the state and leaves an impression of good will and optimism on every community it touches."

"In this connection, it is well to state that in cooperation with the United States department of agriculture, this institution has brought into Georgia during the seventeen years' incumbency of Dr. Soule as president a sum of $2,905,851.46. This money has been used for the benefit of the farmers of the state and has carried the best of agricultural information into every section of the state."

The members of the board, present at Tuesday's meeting, all of whom signed the statement afterwards given out, included J. J. Brown, state commissioner of agriculture; W. E. Simmons, J. E. Hays, J. A. Gaston, George Gilmore, Frank T. Kidd, Julian B. McCurry, L. G. Hardman, chairman executive committee; J. J. Connor, chairman of board of trustees.

New Trial Is Given Mrs. Byfield as Result Of Technical Error

In granting a new trial to Mrs. Clyde Byfield in her suit against Walter Candler for $100,000 damages the state court of appeals based its decision upon a technical error in one portion of the court's charge at the original trial, and not because the charge was favorable or unfavorable to either party to the suit, it was stated Tuesday by counsel for Mrs. Candler.

The explanation was made in view of newspaper reports which had stated that the new trial was granted because portions of the judge's instructions to the jury were favorable to the defendant.

"As a matter of fact," said Mr. Candler's counsel, "the court held that there was a technical error in only one portion of the court's charge, and that the 22 special grounds of error assigned in the amended motion for new trial, the court held that there was only a technical error in one of them and that there is no merit in any of the other assignments."

Atlanta Brides Will Be Guests Of Constitution

Brides who are to be guests of The Constitution at "Just Married" during the opening week of the reorganized Lyric Players Dramatic Stock company will get enough information to make married life a sweet dream of bliss, it was indicated during the six hours of rehearsal held by the players Tuesday morning and afternoon.

Every member of the new company was present, Fred Raymond, Jr., leading man, having reached Atlanta early Tuesday morning. The chief informant of new brides, it was revealed, however, is to be Marion White, the ingenue, who is to play the bride, into whose lines Anne Nicholls, the playwright, has written a formula for training a husband. Mabel Griffiths, as the old married woman, and Miss White as the bride, will exchange matrimonial secrets during the play.

The Constitution has arranged to send every bride couple married between December 1 and 22, this year, and four guests of each, to the play as its guests. Any couple married during this month in Fulton county may receive an order for a full box at the Lyric for one performance of the play by appearing at the office of the "Just Married Editor" on the fourth floor of The Constitution with a duly certified marriage certificate and a photograph of the bride.

The Woodrow Wilson I knew"

The Answer to the Whisperings About Woodrow Wilson's Love Affairs by MARY ALLEN HULBERT [MARY PECK]

begins in Liberty—out today

SLANDER'S fangs have struck deeply at the memory of our dead War President . . . !

Now—as slander rears its head in a high moment—Mary Allen Hulbert (Mary Peck) answers! Tells the true story of her friendship with Woodrow Wilson!

She says: "I, who was honored by his friendship, who gloried and still glory in it, who was permitted to glimpse the clear, fine nobility of his mind, have paid a peculiar penalty. . . . And yet I am too proud to fight. . . . I did not fight when the Department of Justice sent men and women to—but I am not at all sure what they had in mind to do. Confiscate his letters to me, for one thing. Link me with the kaiser's system of espionage, for another."

Of her final determination to still the serpent's tongue by public denial, she quotes a friend's warning: "Mary Hulbert, if you write these articles you will lose what shred of reputation you have left."

Of her friendship with Woodrow Wilson at Bermuda, she relates the following incident, "Our favorite walk was along the south shore—over the tribal road which runs straight from the landlocked harbor to the open sea. A lovely walk. We talked of a number of things, the wonderful understanding of his mind made for perfect comradeship."

At last—after years of silence—Mary Allen Hulbert has written this answer to the whisperings about Woodrow Wilson's love affairs. It is the truth—laid bare—for the first time. It will appear exclusively in Liberty Magazine. It is an historical document no citizen should miss; an amazing revelation of Woodrow Wilson's private life, never before published. It begins in this week's Liberty. Out today. At all newsstands. 5c.

SOUTHERN CLUBS BOOST SHARE OF SMALL CLUBS

Financial Aid Is Pledged Three Teams; Atlanta Opens April 14 in Chattanooga

Memphis, Tenn., December 16.—Southern association directors tonight concluded a busy two days' session at the annual winter convocation with the fixing of April 14 as the opening date of the 1925 championship season, adopted a revised constitution, increased the visiting club's share of the receipts of "road" games to a basis of 20 cents on each paid admission and by unanimous vote adopted a resolution giving the clubs in the three smaller cities in the league—Mobile, Chattanooga and Little Rock—a substantial guarantee of financial assistance.

In the revision of the constitution, greater power and authority was vested in the league president, John D. Martin, among other things, making his rulings as to protested games and the fining and penalizing of managers, players and umpires during the playing season final and granting him the right to decline to approve and promulgate any contract between a club and players when in his judgment and discretion such action would be to the best interest of the league and for the protection of the game itself.

Another resolution adopted gave non-playing managers the right to go upon the coaching lines without being required to sign a player's contract and be counted within the player limit.

Room for Protest. Provision also was made that disputes or claims between the clubs and between the players and the clubs shall be decided by the league executive unless either party, at the time of the filing of the claim or complaint demands a hearing before the full league directorate composed of the league president and the presidents of the eight clubs.

Another action taken at today's session—which began shortly before noon and was in continuous session for ten hours—authorized Mr. Martin as president of the league to enter into a contract for a five-year period with the Texas league for a post-season series between the pennant winners of the Southern association and Texas league for the Dixie championship.

In fixing the opening date for the coming season an agreement was reached for the opening day games to be played in Little Rock, Mobile, Nashville and Chattanooga. Memphis will be the opposing team at Little Rock, Nashville at Mobile, Birmingham at Nashville and Atlanta at Chattanooga.

Heinemann Heads Board. The allotment of holiday games was deferred. A. J. Heinemann, president of the New Orleans club, was named as chairman of the schedule committee to draft a tentative schedule of 154 games to be submitted to the spring meeting of the league in Memphis, March 2, or earlier if a call for a meeting before that date should be found advisable. The schedule committee, composed of Mr. Heinemann, Frank Nicklin, of Chattanooga, and R. G. Allen, of Little Rock, will meet in New Orleans at the call of the chairman.

Under the plan adopted to aid financially the smaller cities, in addition to providing that

J. P. C. QUINT READY FOR NEWBERRY

The Jewish Progressive club basketball team is being put through hard, nightly practices by Coach Bean in order to assure its perfect fitness for Thursday night when it tackles the strong Newberry quintet of South Carolina. This game, which will be Atlanta's first of the season and is an inter-sectional one at that, will be played on the B'nai B'rith court, 90 Capitol avenue.

Newberry is invading Georgia soil with the avowed purpose of carrying a victory back to South Carolina. The J. P. C. is equally determined to uphold the court honor of Atlanta.

Coach Joe Bean, at the last practice, distributed uniforms to the 12 men who will compose the first varsity squad. They were: forwards, Captain Spielberger, Finkelstein, Epstein, Socoloff; centers, Dorfan, Hillman; guards, Rosner, Sigel, Turner, Robinson, Heiman, Bergman. Bean also stated that 10 extra men will be given "apprentice" uniforms and kept in training for future use. In the meantime the B'nai B'rith court is being made ready to accommodate the crowd that is to witness this inter-sectional game which starts at 8:30 o'clock.

CAL. GOVERNOR HITS BOXING

Los Angeles, December 16.—Governor Friend W. Richardson today took under consideration the appointment of a state boxing commission, as authorized at a recent election, to control what the executive in a statement termed the "alleged sport" in California.

The statement said: "To me the matter of the new prize fight commission is a small and objectionable duty. It cannot compare in importance to the appointments on the railroad commission or judicial appointments, but strangely hundreds of people seem to be interested in prize fighters, while only a few care anything about other really important appointments."

"I am anxious to obtain the best men possible on the athletic commission as the initiative law recently, but incorrectly calls it. I want men of high character, courage and some knowledge of this alleged sport in order that the fight game be kept as clean as possible. I doubt the ability of any commission to put prize fighting on a plane of cleanliness and sportsmanship, but will do my part in appointing the best commission obtainable."

The new law becomes effective December 17.

SHREVEPORT BUYS PACIFIC COAST HURLER

Sacramento, Cal., December 16.—"Bill" Prough, veteran pitcher of the Sacramento club of the Pacific Coast league, has been sold to the Shreveport club of the Texas league, Lewis Moore, an owner of the Senators, announced today.

He was going at top speed with his second stride. He had developed that better than anyone else. But to get a long lead was a different matter.

In his study of pitchers Cobb had observed that certain of them had an individual move just before making a throw to first. A pitcher has to make some kind of a move to turn the first and Cobb decided that most pitchers had certain little telltale movements. He studied them closely and discovered that all of them had.

Stole on Cy Young.

Cobb had little difficulty in stealing bases on Denton T. (Cy) Young, one of the greatest pitchers the league ever saw. This was always puzzling to other players. Young had a second move to first. He caught many players napping. It was unwise to take a long lead with Young in the box and the wisest thing a runner could do was to keep close to the bag. But good as Young was, Cobb found it easy to steal on him. It was always a mystery and still, this explanation of Cobb's success, shows that it was really no trick at all.

In observing Young, Cobb discovered one day that Young, who always held the ball with both hands near his chin when in pitching position with men on bases, drew the hands against his chest as he started to wind up. Cobb watched him for several innings and saw that Young never threw the ball to a base after pulling the hands to his chest. As long as the hands were extended from the body he was likely to throw to a base, but as soon as the hands hugged the chest Young threw the ball only in one direction and that was toward the plate.

While He Had Ball. After that Cobb always watched Young's hands. While they were out in front of him, clapping the ball, Cobb stayed close to the base, but as soon as the hands were drawn in against the chest Cobb broke for the next base. Because he was sprinting while Young still had the ball he got such a start that it was impossible for the catcher to throw him out. Young could never understand why Cobb was able to steal on him. His catcher could never understand why Young probably never found out. Cobb kept his secret.

Every pitcher in some manner tipped off his intentions of throwing to a base. It may have been a movement of the head or neck, a slight twist of the shoulder or the elbow. There was always one part of the body that never failed, even if the pitcher succeeded in covering up elsewhere, and that was the feet. If Cobb could not get the signal from the head, neck, shoulders or elbow, he was always sure to get it from the feet. No pitcher can throw without turning the feet and Cobb, in taking his lead, would watch the feet. He got the signal for a coming throw a fraction of a second sooner than he could get it by watching the upper part of the body.

CAPTAINS OF GEORGIA AND TECH LAUD IDEA OF CONSTITUTION CUP

Captains-elect of Georgia and Tech yesterday added their voices to those of athletic directors and prominent alumni of the two great institutions in expressing appreciation for the offer made last week by Clark Howell, editor of The Constitution, of a $500 cup to be known as The Constitution trophy for the school winning two out of three football meetings between the Bulldogs and the Golden Tornado.

The cup will go for a year, beginning in 1925, to the team winning the annual game. At the end of the three years, the cup goes permanently to the winner of two of the three games. In the event of one tie game, the team scoring the most points in the three contests will receive the trophy.

In the expressions from both Captain-elect Wycoff, of Tech, and Captain-elect Thompson, of Georgia, determination to make the game a model of gentlemanly sportsmanship is the dominant note. The statements follow:

BY "SMACK" THOMPSON,

Captain-Elect of the 1925 Georgia Bulldogs.

I express my sentiments and those of the entire team when I say that Mr. Clark Howell has done a very beautiful thing in symbolizing with The Constitution trophy the resumption of Georgia and Tech athletic relations on the gridiron.

Athletic competition between the two schools will make for a better spirit between Georgia and Tech and it merits such a trophy.

This gives me the chance to say something else that has long been on my mind. Many people have the idea that few football players' minds ever get above the gridiron sufficiently for them to appreciate touching tributes and sentiments. I know that this is not so. The flower of human gratitude and appreciation grows in a football player's heart just like it grows in other people's hearts.

The fight for the permanent possession of The Constitution trophy will be clean and hard. Although I will only lead the club into one of the three battles it will take to establish a permanent owner, as captain of the team I will do my utmost to keep the battle spirit at a hard, clean level, and may the best team win.

"SMACK" THOMPSON.

BY "DOUG" WYCOFF,

Captain-Elect of Tech's 1925 Golden Tornado.

Election as captain of a Golden Tornado of Georgia Tech was more than I ever hoped for, but to be accorded the honor of leading the Tornado against Georgia in their first game for possession of such a cup as The Constitution trophy will be just a little more than I can realize right now. November 14, 1925, will be the greatest of my football days.

Mr. Howell's offer of The Constitution trophy is the one thing that could add to the rivalry between Tech and Georgia in gridiron competition. It gives both schools the opportunity to do more than add a score to their records. The school that wins the cup—may it be Tech, but won squarely just the same if it is Georgia—will have earned its prize trophy.

If there is a possibility of either Tech or Georgia playing cleaner football than both teams have in the past, they will do it November 14, 1925, on Grant field. The Tornado will be out to make Georgia respect it and hard, clean football breeds respect, no matter which team wins.

Every football man at Tech will back me up when I say that Tech is going to put up the hardest fight in its history against Georgia, and the squarest.

"DOUG" WYCOFF.

REUTHER MAY PITCH FOR SENATORS

New York, December 16.—If the National league ball clubs still have the same opinion of Dutch Reuther that they had a year ago, the once great left-hand pitcher of the Brooklyn Dodgers may show up with a world champion uniform draped over his slender figure next season. The Washington Senators, who like all other teams, want him any more to be after Reuther, now that the Dodgers don't want him any more for temperamental reasons.

Last year the Dodgers asked waivers on Dutch and none of the other National league teams would have him at the rock-bottom price, according to report at that time. Reuther had a poor season in 1924, but after a winter of rest might come back and do valuable work for the Senators.

CHAMP LICKS PAUL FRITCH

Paris, December 16.—(By the Associated Press.)—Lucien Vinez, who two months ago won the European lightweight championship from Fred Bectonnet, tonight decisively outpointed Paul Fritch in a 20-round bout, in which the title was at stake. Vinez had all the better throughout. He inflicted severe punishment on Fritch who belongs to the "stable" of Francois Descaups, the mentor of Georges Carpentier.

Bruno Fratini, of Italy, who won the middleweight championship from Roland Todd some time ago, boxed 15 slow rounds to a draw with Francis Charles, of France. Ringside opinion was that Fratini showed little to warrant his taking on the American star middleweight.

Michel Montreuil, of Belgium, flyweight champion of Europe, received an artistic beating from "Kid" Francis, a French boy, in a 10-round bout. Johnny Dundee, the American fighter, referred this bout. During the evening Edouard Mascart, featherweight champion of Europe, challenged Dundee to a fight, and it is probable a bout will be arranged.

BROOKS HEADS TRAPSHOOTERS

Dayton, Ohio, December 16.—At the annual meeting of the Amateur Trapshooting association today U. R. Brooks, of Columbia, S. C., was elected president. He has been a director for several years and last year served as vice president.

Peace Committee To Call On Czar Before Session; Both Ban and Judge Silent

Chicago, December 16.—(By the Associated Press.)—Settlement of all grievances existing between Keenaw Mountain Landis, baseball commissioner, and President Ben Johnson, of the American league, is expected to be reached when the 16 club owners of the American and National leagues reconvene here tomorrow in the joint session postponed in New York a week ago.

Prior to the opening of this meeting, Colonel Jacob Ruppert, of the New York Americans; E. S. Hammond, president of the Cleveland club, and President Thomas Shibe, of the Philadelphia Athletics, constituting the American league peace committee, will extend the olive branch to Commissioner Landis at his office. In an attempt to effect a reconciliation between him and the American league executive. After this meeting the club owners will go into session probably tomorrow noon, to transact the business confronting them at their adjourned New York session.

Calm at Headquarters.

If there is a baseball storm brewing tonight there was no indication of it at headquarters of the American league at Commissioner Landis' office. Commissioner Landis said he had nothing to say as to what may happen at tomorrow's meeting. He said the session had been called for 11 o'clock and apparently seemed desirous to let it go at that.

President Johnson, returning from a visit to St. Louis, said he had no statement to make. He assured interviewers, however, that he would be present at the meeting, the first over which Commissioner Landis has presided since their break in relations.

Intimation that Commissioner Landis might resign if Johnson remains as president of the American league was discounted in baseball circles tonight. Everywhere the statement was made that the principal business before the meeting will be to bring Johnson and Landis together and urge more cooperation between Johnson, Landis and President John Heydler, of the National league, composing the baseball advisory council.

"The claim was made in some quarters that Commissioner Landis in his handling of baseball affairs, had not taken Presidents Johnson and Heydler into his confidence as much as certain club owners had wished. These owners hoped to convince Commissioner Landis that he should consult with other members of the advisory council before deciding important issues, particularly those affecting the major leagues."

Commissioner Silent.

The resolutions adopted at the meeting at New York upholding Landis' administration, and giving him a vote of confidence will be presented at tomorrow's session. Whatever action the commissioner will take on these resolutions is known only to himself, but the remarks he is expected to make to the 16 club owners probably will be worth hearing, his admirers say.

Whenever major league club owners gather, trade talk prevails, but so far the only deal on the fire is the one involving Urban Shocker, veteran St. Louis American league spitball pitcher, whose services are sought by the Yankees. The White Sox are understood to be bidding for Shocker. A deal involving him may be consummated tomorrow.

EIGHT GAMES NOW BOOKED BY PETRELS

Following the announcement Monday that the Petrels will play Central Tech and Mercer in Atlanta during the 1925 football season, Athletic Director Frank Anderson, of Oglethorpe, announced Tuesday that eight games have been definitely scheduled and that two more were pending.

An open date for November 7 appears on the Petrel tentative 1925 schedule. Anderson said that date filled before many days have passed. Mercer and Tech have been played here before but next year will be the first appearance of the Centre Cardinals in Atlanta on the Petrel schedule since 1922.

The schedule of Oglethorpe, when completed, will carry 10 games, starting against Tech on September 29, and ending December 6 in Miami, Fla., against Rollins college. It is the hardest schedule ever attempted by an S. I. A. A. team for such outfits as Tech, Centre, Fort Benning, Loyola Presbyterian college, Mercer, University of Chattanooga and Rollins are on the Petrel schedule for 1925. An open date also appears on October 3.

Howard college, Wofford, Citadel and St. Louis are the teams that Oglethorpe played last season that do not appear on the new list, but Anderson hopes to line up two of those teams for the open dates.

Sewanee university was dropped from the 1925 schedule because of conflicting dates on the Tiger schedule.

Clark To Finish Training Today for McGowan Fight

Jackie Clark, middleweight champion of the A. E. F., will arrive in Atlanta early today for his second fight with Billy McGowan, local light heavyweight, Thursday night in the city auditorium in a benefit boxing show.

Clark was slated to arrive in Atlanta on Monday, but he was detained in Washington and will not reach the city until today.

Immediately after his arrival in the city Clark will go to a local fight gymnasium and indulge in a short workout as a final preparation for his fight Thursday night.

McGowan has been training intensively for the fight in the hope of giving Atlanta's boxing fans another taste of what he is capable of doing. McGowan and Clark fought to a draw in a 12-round bout on July 4 in Macon and local promoters have attempted several times to sign the pair for a bout here. The fight has been arranged as the headline on the card for the benefit of the Home for Old Women.

According to the promoters, the preliminary bouts are the best ever arranged for a local fight with a battle royal of six colored battlers opening the show.

Tickets are on sale at Ches's place on Edgewood avenue and at Jake's place in the Kimball House.

TY COBB'S LIFE STORY

Chapter XXIV.—The Greatest in the Game—Why Cobb Succeeded—Cy Young's Secret.

BY H. G. SALSINGER.

In Ty Cobb baseball has the greatest base runner of all time. There have been other players who stole more bases than Cobb and others who were considered great base runners, but they performed in what is regarded in sport as "the long ago." When they played, the rules of the game were different and the style of play also was entirely different; a combination making base stealing an easy matter compared to the rules and system of play in vogue the last 25 years.

When Cobb first began making records as a base runner (and his mark continues to stand and promise to continue for many seasons) he was regarded as a child prodigy. "Just blind luck," players would say in explaining his success. A certain percentage of success in baseball is due to luck, but a player can not continue season after season on luck alone to accomplish what Cobb did; he has to have something besides luck, Cobb had it.

What puzzled unbiased students of baseball was how Cobb could run

What Cobb Possessed.

In base running Cobb had speed but he also had brains and it was this combination that made him a great runner. He was not a faster man than he was a keen observer. Cobb had knowledge, nerve, courage and speed. The most valuable of these qualities was knowledge.

Cobb, figuratively, always had an ace in the hole in running bases. He did not run haphazardly, depending upon his speed to get him by. He had made a study of pitchers as a batter and he also made a study of pitchers as a base runner. He realized that two things were necessary to run bases successfully: a long lead and the other a quick start. He had the quick start. No play-baseball was how Cobb could run

CLOSE GAMES FEATURE OPENING OF S. S. LEAGUE

Central Baptist Defeats
Fortified Hills in Main
Tilt of Basketball Bill

BY ROY WHITE.

The Sunday School Athletic association basketball teams started on what promises to be one of the greatest seasons ahead when seven games were played Tuesday night on the Central Y. M. C. A. courts before a record crowd.

Four games were played on the large court and attracted the larger number of spectators, while three games were played on the small court. The games played on the small court were by players in the smallest division of the teams, 140 pounds and under.

The opening game was played between Central Baptist and Fortified Hills and ended in a 23-to-20 victory for the Central Baptist five. It was the best game of the seven played and was close from the very beginning. Central Baptist was on the long end of a 19-to-16 score at the end of the half and for ten minutes in the second half neither team scored.

Won in Last Minutes.

Fortified Hills played an uphill game in the second half and was within two points of tying the score near the close of the game when two long field goals by Robertson placed Central Baptist in the lead.

A.'s basketball team started the game for Pondeleon but was removed from the game in the second half because of fouls. It was the first appearance of Hearn on a basketball floor this year.

Pep Class won its initial game of the 1924-25 Sunday school basketball schedule Tuesday night over the Piedmont Class by a 23-to-16 score. Both teams played good basketball and it was only in the last few moments of play that the Pep class pulled away from Piedmont and ended the game in the lead.

Medlin, University School for Boys star forward; Jackson, a scrub on the Atlanta Athletic club team, played the best ball for the winners. Medlin scored 13 points against only 2 by Jackson, but the Pep passing was centered around the latter.

Boer Premier Jars Britain With Plan for German-Owned Steel Mill in South Africa

Boxing Fever Invades Old Ladies' Home

SPARRING HELPS "TO KEEP THEM IN GOOD FORM"

Turning Inmates Into Devotees of Game

Hertzog Would Insure Success of Company by Charging Duty on All Imported Steel.

BY CHARLES M. McCANN.
London, December 16.—Premier Hertzog, the viceroy of the South African republic, who was a bitter enemy of the British following the defeat of his countrymen during the Boer war and who finally forced Premier Smuts from office, is dickering with German industrialists for the establishment of a great German steel works in Pretoria.

Hertzog has ignored the efforts of British firms to establish plants in South Africa and has put into effect his theory that the British empire comes second. His bold move to settle German industry in South Africa is causing grave concern to the British foreign office and to British business men who alike depend upon the empire for employment of their various talents.

Backed by a somewhat radical socialist majority of which the voting strength is largely contributed by Boers who knew the English as a relentless foe during the bloody days of the Boer war, Hertzog has reversed the policy of former Premier Smuts, who strove to strengthen the bonds between the home country and the dominions.

To Give Tariff Protection.
The disclosure of Hertzog's intention to invite German capital into South Africa was made by the daily express, a conservative organ close to the Churchill-Chamberlain clique within Premier Baldwin's cabinet.

South Africa, under Hertzog, will agree to protect the German steel makers either by bounties or tariffs, according to the express. Such protection would force British manufacturers to compete against a protected industry operating in one of the four great self-governing dominions and controlled and financed by Germans.

Nominally the projected steel corporation would be backed by Dutch, Belgians and Germans, but it is understood here that the Dutch and Belgian interests were included for the sake of appearances, only, and that the Germans would dominate the corporation.

More than $5,000,000 of German capital would enter South Africa under the proposed agreement with Hertzog's government.

First Break in Empire.
The situation is one of tremendous significance, as it is the first instance of unfriendly divergence from the imperial notion of exchanging trade where possible.

Hertzog is not popular with conservative or liberal thinkers in England. Even the socialists cannot countenance his careless disregard of the empire. He has been described by an unfriendly critic thus:

"He is a fanatic—perfectly sane on all subjects but he is the incarnate spirit of the bigoted, ignorant narrow-minded Boer of the Backveld. The empire is nothing to Hertzog; the empire is a hindrance. His fanaticism is purely racial, and so in tense that he would cheerfully sacrifice the whole future of his country to flooring unsullied and intact."

Hertzog is said to desire a South African republic, dominated by the sturdy, hard-headed Dutch Boers who compose the great majority of the white population.

CHARLES ROGERS MURDERED, CLAIM

New Haven, Conn., December 16.—Authorities investigating the mysterious death of Charles G. Rogers, a New York bond salesman, are now convinced that he was murdered, and expect to be able to produce his slayer, Constable Carlson, of North Haven, declared Tuesday night.

Carlson also expressed the belief that Miss Marjorie Schneider, who was driving with Rogers when he was supposed to have been killed, was shielding someone. Rogers was killed in his automobile while returning from a Yale football game, after a party at which both he and Miss Schneider were said to have drunk. The girl did not remember what happened to her escort, but claimed he must have been struck by a telephone pole when he thrust his head outside the car.

"We have a fairly good idea who the murderer is," Constable Carlson said, "but as yet we have not gotten him underneath our thumbs and consequently are not prepared to divulge his identity. We have established reasonable evidence that a murderous assault was committed on Rogers somewhere in the vicinity of the North Haven turnpike on the night of the fatality. When we have our next grand jury hearing we expect to produce that man. That will be some time later next week."

HELENA SHIVERS; ATLANTA BALMY

weather during the last few days has been so springlike.

Preceding the drop in temperature Wednesday night, the official forecast recited, there will be local showers. The Washington forecast for Georgia is for cloudy weather.

The lowest temperature in Atlanta Tuesday was 22, and the highest 62, degrees above the normal mark.

The cold wave and snowstorm area includes Colorado, Arizona, Montana and parts of Minnesota and the two Dakotas.

WYOMING AND COLORADO CATCH IN ICE GRIP.

Denver, Colo., December 16.—Sweeping southward along the eastern slope of the Rocky mountains, the storm that entered the United States yesterday tonight had spread its icy grip and snowy mantle into Wyoming and northern Colorado.

Zero and sub-zero temperatures prevailed to the north of here in the mountain regions and rapidly sinking mercury presaged the coldest night of the season for Colorado.

Montana still was suffering from extremely low temperatures, and discomfort brought about by steadily falling snows.

Snow began falling in Cheyenne, Wyo., late today with the thermometer hovering about ten degrees above zero. Heavy snows are predicted for both Colorado and northern New Mexico tonight, with a severe cold wave that extends into northern Arizona.

A pre-storm indication of great variety was reported from points in New Mexico throughout the day, where fogs were in evidence.

COLD WAVE APPROACHING SOUTH FROM NORTHWEST.

Chicago, December 16.—The most severe cold weather of the winter swept through the northwest tonight and was rapidly spreading south and east, with forecasts indicating that by tomorrow night the entire Mississippi and Ohio Valley will show temperatures hovering about ten degrees below zero.

The extreme cold appeared yesterday in the Canadian prairie provinces and in Montana and today swept through the Dakotas and on into Minnesota, Nebraska and Iowa. Temperatures ranging from zero to 20 degrees below zero were reported from points in the United States, while from Canada came reports of temperatures of 12 degrees below zero. The coldest spot in the United States was believed to be at Helena, Mont., with a sub-zero temperature of 30 degrees.

Biting winds and heavy snows and blizzards accompanied the dropping mercury in the Rocky mountain region and in the Dakotas and western Minnesota. Late in the day the cold weather struck Kansas and Missouri, where drops in temperature of more than 20 degrees were recorded in a few hours.

The temperature in Chicago and over Illinois started to drop early tonight. Low temperatures were expected as far south as the West Indies. Zero weather was reported for the first time this fall from the Pacific coast, the mercury at Spokane dropping 30 degrees in 24 hours.

protest arose from another quarter Tuesday at noon, when Brooks Morgan, president of the Frank E. Block company, in an address before the Rotary club characterized the salary schedule as "outrageous."

"I think something should be done to cut these salaries and turn over the money thus saved to the public school system, where it is badly needed."

Mr. Morgan declared that "we have been stung on the salary question." He pointed out that a great saving was expected from the installation of the salary system, but declared that the present rates of salaries are "unparalleled."

A check of other cities and counties in this country will show that Fulton county is paying exorbitant amounts to her officials," Mr. Brooks declared. "I think something should be done to cut these salaries and turn over the money thus saved to the public school system, where it is badly needed."

This is but one of the many protests already voiced and the meeting today, the first since the salary schedule was made public, is expected to attract much attention.

Ladies-e-s and gentlemen-e-s—In this corner we have "Young Joe" Davidson, septuagenarian champion of the whole wide world; in the other corner "Kid" Peabody, conqueror of Old Age and Sadness.

In such high-flown ring parlance a wide-awake promoter would probably describe the neat little bout in progress in the above photograph.

MILK COMMISSION REPORT PROPOSALS WILL BE STUDIED

Reports of the city milk commission which recommend that 12 months after passage of such special ordinance, all milk delivered in Atlanta shall be pasteurized with the exception of certified and grade A milk, will be considered by the ordinance committee of city council at a public hearing to be held at 3 o'clock New Year's day, it was stated Tuesday by Councilman Horace Russell, chairman of the committee.

Mr. Russell declared that although the day is a holiday, the date is the ordinance committee's regularly scheduled meeting and the session will be called. The report, together with a report of Dr. John P. Kennedy, city health physician, of a convention held in Detroit recently, was referred to the ordinance committee by city council Monday.

Big Deer Roundup Gets Under Way In Driving Snow

Flagstaff, Ariz., December 16.—Working in a driving snowstorm, 50 cowboys and Indians are beating through the east end of the Kaibab plateau in a round-up of from 5,000 to 8,000 deer.

George McCormick, Arizona cattlemen, led his men to the north rim of the Grand Canyon Tuesday. They will attempt to drive the deer into the depths of the canyon, make them swim the Colorado river to the south of the Tanner trail and then herd them east to the south rim, a few miles east of Grand View.

The huge round-up is necessary by poor foraging conditions in the Kaibab reserve. If the drive is successful, the animals will be distributed to restock other forests of the state.

Great drift fences have been constructed by Indians along the plateau where the drive started. Other Navajo with small bells are scattered through the section to start the deer into the fenced district and keep them on the trail until the canyon rim is reached.

The snow is not expected to delay the drive and may be helpful in driving the deer to concentrate. McCormick, who will receive from the state $2 a head for all deer reaching the south rim, expects to complete the drive by Saturday night.

Fortune in Gems Returned by Thief To Lady Ludlow

London, December 16.—More than $1,000,000 worth of antique jewelry, stolen from the home of Lady Ludlow last August, has been mysteriously returned to her. Piccadilly home, intact and wrapped in the same silk sofa cushion in which it was removed.

Lady Ludlow's collection of antique gems and trinkets at Bath House, her London home, is worth $5,000,000. The successful raid on it last August, when thieves got away with one-fifth of the collection, was one of the greatest hauls recorded in modern times.

The stolen jewelry, like all the Ludlow collection, was practically unique owing to its age and peculiar workmanship. It was said at the time of the robbery that there was no spot on the earth so remote that the booty could be disposed of without causing the thieves to be captured.

Apparently the fortune in silver, gold and stones did not appeal to the robbers when they learned that it could not be converted into cash.

ILLINOIS ASSIGNS FOUR NEW JUDGES TO MURDER BENCH

Chicago, December 16.—With an overwhelming number of murder cases awaiting trial by the courts here, four more judges are to be assigned from the circuit and superior courts to the criminal courts, to try murder cases exclusively.

The decision to assign more judges to handle murder cases is due to the fact that on December 1 there were 120 persons awaiting trial for murder. During November 14 cases, involving 23 defendants, were heard, but sufficient indictments were returned in November to bring the figure to 118 persons by the first of this month.

the Underwood measure is a substitute, was on his feet at once with an objection. Discussion then turned to an amendment of Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, to incorporate parts of the federal water power act in the bill for regulation of power rates.

Senate leaders plan to make an effort to bring a final vote on the Underwood bill tomorrow. If they fail they expect to hold night sessions and use every force at their command to check what they have described as filibustering tactics.

Watson Favors Commission.
After a visit to the white house today, Senator Watson, republican, Indiana, said he favored referring the Muscle Shoals question to a commission for settlement. He declared he favored the Underwood bill over the Norris bill, but that since a number of senators had told him they did not feel they had sufficient information on the subject to pass on it, he favored the appointment of a commission.

Senator Smith said after his amendment had been defeated that it would have provided for government operation of the plant at full capacity for fertilizer experimentation until the government had learned what it had to do. Since the amendment was defeated, he predicted the appointment of a commission to settle the question.

would throw their arms about each other. She would sit in his lap and they would caress each other."

Allen Stanley, another celebrated vaudeville and phonograph singer, who helped make her home town famous by her rendition of "Chicago," added her affidavit to Anna's. She has sung many duets with Murray and once visited his home. She told of a bathing party in Murray's house and described a dinner scene.

"Mr. Combs appeared at the head of the table in complete charge of the meal," Allen deplored. "Sometime later he appeared in the room wearing his uniform and said he was going out on post."

Takes Lunch to Billy.
"About an hour later, Mrs. Murray said to me, 'What do you say we take some lunch to Billy—the poor kid in hiding around all the time on his bicycle and he'll appreciate it.'"

Followed a hectic search of Freepert, Allen said, with Mrs. Murray in hysterics. Mrs. Murray, known as a scene followed when Mrs. Murray accused Combs of being unfaithful to her.

"I bring you chicken and drinks and find you down at another girl's house," Mrs. Murray said, according to Allen.

Miss Stanley said she then tried to break up the romance and that when Mrs. Murray promised to behave herself, Combs pressed his gun against her head, and Mrs. Murray, knowing the gun to the ground, changed her mind. Both Combs and Mrs. Murray then went and renewed vows of undying love to each other, Allen said.

Mrs. Murray has brought a counter suit, charging cruelty and demanding temporary alimony. Murray in his answer to this, said he was on a salary of $1,250 weekly and made other money on the stage, but that he had nothing but his salary because Mrs. Murray had taken all his money and owed $7,000 to creditors. The popularity of radio, he said, had made him afraid that his contract would not be renewed.

UNDERWOOD BILL WEATHERS STORM

Dakota; Butler, Massachusetts, republican; Overman, North Carolina; Caraway, Arkansas, democrats.

Opposition Not Killed.
Opponents of the Underwood bill demonstrated today that they had not let up in their fight against the measure. Before midnight the vote on the amendment, a vote on the bill was called, but Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, author of the government-ownership bill, for which the World War Debt commission, and Secretary Mellon very frankly called meeting of that debt commission and appraised us of the substance of those conversations. I do not think I am at liberty to go into the details of what transpired, but I can say to you there was no definite proposition made, no suggestion made, that for a moment would be accepted by this country. The suggestions were of such a nature that they did not meet with the approval of the debt funding commission. So there is nothing definite pending as to the settlement of the French indebtedness to the United States."

NO MOVE MADE TO FUND U. S. DEBT

Praises Britain.
Mr. Crisp was asked by Representative Blanton, of Texas, as to whether he knew that the French ambassador was especially authorized by his government to make any overtures.

Crisp replied: "I assume he was, or he would not have appeared before the secretary of the treasury."

"Concluding my statement as to that, I may say to you that the debt funding commission is earnestly hoping that some representative of France will almost immediately, if not later, ask permission to go before the debt funding commission to make a definite proposition of settlement, for the debt funding commission is most anxious to have the French indebtedness funded. Now a good deal has been said in the newspapers as to the actions and discussions in England relative to the statement that was broadcasted to the effect that France was making a proposition to settle her indebtedness to the United States. Now, gentlemen, I have respect and admiration for his Britannic majesty's government."

Was Prompt in Payment.
"The English government has always observed all of its obligations and agreements, whether those agreements were to aid an ally in the defense against an unjust war or whether it was to pay her obligations. Great Britain is our largest creditor. Right after the armistice, or within a reasonable time thereafter, Great Britain entered into negotiations with this government to fund her indebtedness. Negotiations were concluded and the present premium of England, Mr. Baldwin, as chancellor of the exchequer, conducted negotiations and England has made every payment under the terms of that agreement. She was the first nation to settle with the great debtor, to fund her indebtedness."

"I may say in passing that Great Britain today pays the highest taxes of any nation on earth. Great Britain will keep her covenant and pay every cent she is required to pay under the settlement of her indebtedness to the United States."

Defends British.
"Now it is perfectly natural that Great Britain should desire to have France settle with her and Great Britain is doing exactly as you or I would if we had a debtor and the debtor was proposing to settle with some of his creditors—you and I would want to take steps to see that our indebtedness was also paid, and many people have been put in the bankruptcy court for trying to give preference to some creditors over others. Now England is in no way interfering or attempting to interfere with the settlement of the indebtedness France owes the United States. She simply wants to have her own indebtedness also settled, and I do not think she is blamable in the least for pursuing that course."

"Speaking for myself alone I believe that the just, honorable and fair thing for the settlement of this foreign indebtedness is the English settlement, and I take that to be the basic settlement for all of our foreign indebtedness. The congress of the United States has approved that settlement; the country has approved the settlement and it is honorable and just."

Expect Notes To Be Paid.
"We hold the notes of those debtor nations for the principal due, with 5 per cent interest, and all of the obligations are long since due. We all know that the nations cannot pay those colossal sums at once, so the generous government of the United States has agreed to fund them over a period of 62 years and has reduced the rate of interest from 5 to 3 and 3 1/2 per cent and I do not see how any of our foreign debtors could ask more liberal terms. And speaking to you, my colleagues, I say I will not, either as a member of the debt commission or as a member of this house, vote to settle the indebtedness of any of these other countries in any way which will substantially vary from the basic settlement made with Great Britain."

"I hope as each one of these debts is settled it will be notice to all the other debtors of the United States that America expects them to keep their honest and legal obligations; that they should take steps at once to fund their indebtedness to the United States and begin payments on the same, so that the United States government can reduce the taxes of its already overburdened taxpayers who are being taxed to raise the money loaned to our debtors."

in a statement to newspapermen denied also that favorites were being played at Atlanta. Sartain was not invited to testify before the committee.

Other Wheeler committee witnesses, however, told about the ease with which narcotics were obtained by prisoners in the penitentiary. This, it is believed, was one of the chief reasons prompting the investigation by the new attorney general.

MYSTERY STILL VEILS PRISON PROBE HERE.

Outwit your ill health

NATURE is merciless. Disregard her laws and you suffer. Some of us in El Paso—now in robust, good health—know all too well the costly truth of it. If we had seized time by the forelock, we might not have had such long, trying months of convalescence.

Don't Delay
We say, in all sincerity, to every man or woman with weak lungs, asthma, bronchitis, or tuberculosis, don't delay too long. You can't repair years of neglect overnight.

Be Wise
Be wise, outwit ill health. A few months outdoor living and rest in this dry, sunny, delightful climate may forestall years of suffering.

We are proud that people get well in El Paso—proud that some who have come on stretchers, scarcely willing to live, are now strong, active, able to live anywhere.

Our Message
We want to place in the hands of everyone troubled with asthma, bronchitis, weak lungs or tuberculosis, a copy of "Filling the Sunshine Prescription," This booklet, endorsed by the El Paso Medical Society, will be gladly sent on request.

The Gateway Club has nothing to sell and offers free information of great interest to those in ill-health. Get this booklet and learn about El Paso NOW while the low winter-excursion rates are in force.

Members of Y. W. H. A.

Entertained at Tea.

Mrs. S. R. Greenblatt entertained at tea at her home in Druid Hills recently in compliment to the members of the Young Women's Hebrew association. Many new members were present and it was a pleasant feature to have old and new members become better acquainted. The nominating committee took occasion at this time to present their report for new officers. The following were unanimously elected to carry on the work for the coming year, which will be on a larger scale than ever before, due to the enlarged quarters of the club: President, Mrs. Nathan Bach; first vice president, Mrs. Isidor Jacobs; second vice president, Mrs. S. R. Greenblatt; third vice president, Mrs. A. Kahana; recording secretary, Miss Gladys Shuass; assistant recording secretary, Mrs. Chas. Buchwald; corresponding secretary, Miss Ida Siegel; treasurer, Miss Ida Berchenko; assistant treasurer, Miss Mollie Redbell; auditor, Miss Pauline Gershon.

Baby Simabell Bach, the daughter of the president, who is the youngest member of the organization, being almost two months old, was named the mascot of the "Y." Mrs. Victor H. Kriegshaber, is honorary life president. The club publication, which was started about five years ago, "The Rabbit Foot," will be in the hands of Miss Mollie Shamos as editor, and Mrs. Jake Faeman as business manager. A capable staff will cooperate to make it chatty and sparkling.

During the course of the afternoon, Little Margaret Taylor, the 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. H. Taylor, charmed the gathering by playing on the piano some of the classics.

Miss Margaret Elder To Be Given Beautiful Reception Today

Debutantes will hold sway today, and the most interesting affair will be the lovely reception that Mrs. James Sterling Elder will give, in honor of her charming debutante daughter, Miss Margaret Elder, at her home on Ponce de Leon avenue. Two attractive debutantes receiving honors also today will be Miss Mary Ann Lipscomb, and Miss Mary Balenger. They will be central figures at the luncheon at which Mrs. Joseph D. Osborne, will be hostess today. Miss Rebecca Ashcraft, another of the season's buds, will be entertained at the dinner-dance at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel this evening by Spencer Tunnell, when most of the debutantes and Atlanta's social contingent will be seen dining and dancing.

Of special interest to society is the showing at the Metropolitan of the picture "Abraham Lincoln," a percentage of the receipts going toward the Talullah Falls Industrial school, which is being maintained by the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs. Every Monday evening society has adorned the boxes at the Metropolitan and been present in the body of the house in attendance upon the presentation of this moving picture. Every afternoon and evening during this week will be counted as a brilliant social occasion at which leaders in Atlanta's life will foregather.

Visitors continue to be honored at charming affairs, and as an inspiration for the bridge-tea that Mrs. A. D. Whitaker will give this afternoon, will be two of the younger members of society, Miss Ruth de Wandlear, of New York, and Miss Helen Spiegel, of Jacksonville, Fla. Mrs. O. W. Roosevelt, who is being welcomed to Atlanta, after an absence of several years, will be complimented at a tea this afternoon that Mrs. Ronald Ransom, will give at the Piedmont Driving club.

Christmas Music

By Cathedral Choir.

The St. Philip's Cathedral choir will sing the first of its series of special Christmas music next Sunday evening, December 21, when the "Christmas Rose" by William Lester will be presented.

This is a beautiful short work in the modern style. It is a legend on the birth of the Christ-child and the musical setting is characterized by child-like simplicity, particularly appropriate to the text.

MY BEAUTY RECIPE

By BETTY COMPTON, AS TOLD TO DIANA DARE

Betty Compton "knows her stuff." The beauty question doesn't rattle her—cause she rattle dangles it. She spoke a bit defiantly and determinedly.

"Every girl should study her style of beauty and do everything possible to enhance it. Of course beauty comes from within as well as from the outside. But with her heart and mind attuned right, the modern girl should then turn to the many marvelous aids to beauty, which she can find on all sides.

"I would like to get up on the house-tops and shout that I believe in makeup if it is discriminatingly applied.

"When I walk down the street and see women who are drab looking but who could make themselves attractive if they just lighted up their faces with a bit of color, I just want to scream. If course, I use makeup and I think it is what brings out whatever good looks I have.

"The point in all this is to properly apply makeup. I admit it takes a neat amount of care. I am not a prude and I believe in effective makeup—but I do not believe in conspicuous makeup.

"A girl with very blonde eyebrows is certainly justified in touching them. It isn't fair to her eyes not to. But she must be careful not to touch them one bit too much.

"A girl evokes the criticism 'painted' when she uses rouge just one tiny shade off. Cosmetic experts can tell what shade blondes or brunettes should use, and there are variations for all kinds of complexions. A girl should be sure she is getting the right kind of rouge for her complexion, and when she gets it she should very carefully apply it to her skin.

"There is nothing quite so terrible as the way some girls use rouge on their cheeks. It simply isn't artistic. I don't blame people for rising up in horror at this display.

BETTY COMPTON "Dress Up Your Face"

"Lipstick has a psychological effect. It puts punch into your looks and it puts punch into your spirit. It gives you confidence and assurance. I don't mean the amount that shrieks at you and is revolting. I mean the amount that, when you are feeling in the dumps and are going to be a drag, makes you respond and come quickly up to par. When you look in the mirror and see a reflection of your face bright and alive.

"You are careful how you dress yourself up—be careful how you dress up your face!"

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Mailing Candy.

When mailing home-made candy wrap each piece in waxed paper before packing it in the box. It is the only way to be certain of its safe arrival.

Good Planning.

Do you picture your dinner as well as combine it satisfactorily to the taste? A combination of colors in vegetables makes the dinner more appetizing just because it pleases the eye.

The Wandering String.

When the drawing or ribbon slips back into the casing and is just too far away to reach with the fingers, use a clothes needle and catch it into the hook, then pull. You will have the string in a minute.

Safety First.

I have a tin box in which a pound of coffee is kept, and when I buy matches they are placed in there and the lid clamped on. Then I know no marauding mouse can set my house on fire by chewing at the match during the wee small hours.

Stewart Hale Players To Begin Rehearsals for Atlanta Plays

The rehearsal of the Stewart Hale players will begin at 7:30 o'clock at their hall, 481 Courtland street, this evening. Their first play to be given in Atlanta will be "Brother Elks," George C. Chancellor directing all plays given by the Stewart Hale players.

The Stewart Hale players were first founded in Brest, France, October 1, 1918, by George C. Chancellor, a professional actor. He conceived the idea of an amateur organization based on professional ideas. He decided to put his plan into effect upon his return to New York, August 10, 1919, but on account of the actors' strike all bookings offices and theaters were closed and he was forced to give up his plans.

One year later, September 10, 1920, he visited Sidney Belmont, a well-known theatrical producer in St. Louis, Mo. It was here that Mr. Chancellor unfolded his scheme. A tryout was arranged under Mr. Belmont's supervision, and was a success.

From this a branch organization came out independently under the name of the Lafayette players. The first play was an "Order in Court," written and directed by Mr. Chancellor.

Six months later, the Stewart Hale players turned out 20 professionals—and from this sprang the Alhambra Stock company, of St. Louis. Now a booking office exists in St. Louis under Mr. Belmont called the Alhambra Actors' association.

Branches of the Stewart Hale players exist in New York city, Omaha and Lincoln, Neb., Dallas, Texas, St. Louis, Mo., and Atlanta, Ga.

Today there are still active in St. Louis two non-professional companies and two original professional companies, all started from the Stewart Hale players, of Brest, France.

Bob-Sled Bar. Santa Claus Land, December 16.—(By Courier Duck to The Atlanta Constitution.)—We went to see Santa Claus, in the Mistletoe palace. Ahead of us went a drum major whirling a candy cane as high as a church steeple. We passed between two lines of chocolate soldiers, standing at "present arms."

I thought Santa Claus, being the boss of this country, might have on some kind of a king's uniform, but he didn't. He had on his regular red working suit, trimmed with white fur.

CLAMS AND CALAMITY

By Louise Dooley

ADMIRAL FISKE says we women have no brains. Colonel George Harvey had already made it plain that we have no souls. Fortunately, however, we still possess a sense of humor.

RATIONAL versus effeminate. It's a dull day, indeed, for us clinging vines when some ornament to the male sex, like the rear admiral (if that was not the position of his admiralty, that's where his fellow countrywomen have relegated him this week) or the late ambassador to the court of St. James, beg pardon, the ex-ambassador—or maybe our euphonious friend Mr. A. B. See, fails to put us of the so-called gender sex into our place.

"Not only do women recoil from the idea of war," says Admiral Fiske, "but the extreme delicacy of their nervous systems makes many of them incapable of even thinking of war in a rational way."

Now, without presuming to do anything so unladylike as to think, yet we women have not yet been relieved of the responsibility of feeling.

And so, we feel that the admiral has unconsciously paid quite a tribute to the women who, for it is their prompts us to put up our umbrella when it rains; whatever is the feminine substitute, in other words, for the masculine intelligence.

We are incapable of even thinking about war in a rational way, says the admiral.

In view of the fact that war is absolutely the most irrational thing that civilization has so far failed to discard—behold the tribute.

We are so broadminded, indeed; or more accurately speaking, so liberal in our feelings (which are still spared us) that we agree with the admiral that there is no room for us in the unsatisfactory desire to interfere in matters they do not understand.

Men, too, we would, in our kind, feminine way.

But, considering that in the words of the admiral—the rear admiral—we are incapable of thinking, and yet we are responsible, we women are again strong in our own way, for post-war chaos, for the slump in popular interest in maintenance of an adequate army and navy, and for a few other things, we look like we do a heap of a lot with our meddling effeminacy.

Just imagine what we could have accomplished with it if we had enjoyed the same intelligence at this time, instead of the harsh words now, of the admiral.

And another thing. We might be made to admit that we have no souls and no brains.

But, in all fairness, it will have to be conceded that we have excellent dispositions. (We are almost going to say strong stomachs.)

For we manage most of the time to keep down our real opinions of the Fiskes, the Harveys, the Sees, and company.

SOME WOMEN, by the way, have the affection of illiteracy.

One who had a finishing school education and enough intelligence to run a home, and to be looked on by people as a general at all times, was asked if she had registered for a certain election for school improvements. (She has children in the schools.)

"I haven't brains enough," she replied. "Why that would be all right," retorted the other woman. "They don't ask you at the polls, do they?"—merely if you can read the ballot."

IT takes little intelligent people to carry on an impersonal conversation.

On the other hand, a person of very small mind can throw into conversation a half dozen people of intelligence by injecting personalities into a general conversation.

Similarly, the parties to a most innocent situation can be made self-conscious and the situation significant by the playful person aforesaid, who having no dignity cannot understand. (An illiterate can have dignity, but never an unintelligent person.)

Have you seen it a hundred times, or been the victim?

OUR COMPLEX. "It's better to be lucky than rich." It's better still to have an imposing Personality.

We give a pretty good one. It puts facts and figures on the run.

The very tone of an imposing Personality: its air of being accustomed and entitled to the last word, can make hash of all our pet prejudices.

We hear the imposing Personality consign our politics, our friends, our religion, the books we swear by, the music we venerate, to the limbo of all pests or the things that fatigue intelligence.

We listen and for once we say nothing. "The imposing Personality paralyzes us, and it is just like a nightmare, when the lion is about to pounce and you want to scream but you can't."

Then we wake up, ready for defense, but it's too late. The subject has been changed.

Does an imposing Personality get you that way?

Or is it just our private inferiority complex?

WATERING THEIR AMMUNITION. "Your stories about snobs," remarked a Constant Reader recently, "reminded me of the coming to our city (we'll call it Chicago) of a famous singer who had interrupted a brilliant artistic career to marry one of our prominent Chicago citizens. Incidentally she had also had quite a career in her so-called private life."

The Chicago citizen held a considerable social position, and Chicago people speculated considerably as to the kind of reception the bride would get from the exclusive social group to which her husband belonged.

"Chicago, like every city, has its Mrs. Malaprop, and Mrs. Malaprop, because her curiosity was unbounded, was the first to call."

"Also because she was Mrs. Malaprop, she soon plunged in where anyone would have stopped, looked and listened."

"You must not worry," she said graciously to the newcomer, who was a woman of the world and fearless: "I'm not at all worried. I'm just a little slow in calling. Your position, you know—some people are so narrow—things will work out for you in time, I know."

"She might just as well, of course, have retailed all the gossip and speculation and uncertainty which had agitated this little world. The bride saw the whole situation. She knew, too, that Mrs. Malaprop would repeat every word she said. And so with raised eyebrows and great agony of manner, she said: 'I'm not at all worried. I'm just a little slow in calling. Your position, you know—some people are so narrow—things will work out for you in time, I know.'"

"The ultimatum was duly delivered," the Chicago ladies called.

POEMS THAT LIVE

"I Shall Not Go Back."

I shall not go back to the place that I love.

I shall never try to repeat the perfect hour.

I know the past is gone, yet it is safe enough.

Even to the small blue six-pointed flower.

They say the earth itself in millions of years.

Will drift like fine grey ash that the wind has whipped and tossed.

And the blackened sun will grope blindly among the spheres.

But I am not afraid of the things I love will be lost.

New York December 16.—Dividend disbursements by the railroads of the country during 1924, it is estimated, have been increased by approximately $6,000,000 to a total of $303,000,000. Constructive developments along this line were taken by a half dozen or more carriers this year, although their full effects will not be felt until 1925.

Integration of dividends on the preferred stock of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railroad company at the annual rate of 5 per cent, yesterday, added that road to the growing issuance. Renewed buying of standard investment rail lines were in evidence.

Trading in the public utility group was enlivened by a rally of six points in Brooklyn Union Gas seven of 1929, while the companion issues, ma-

Traction bonds shied in the strength of the other utilities although the list as a whole showed little change.

Strength of various railroad shares and continuation of freight traffic at an unusually heavy volume for this period of the year promoted accumulation of new issues. The Erie and Coast Line first four were one of the chief gainers, advancing 2 3-4 points. Central of New Jersey fives, influenced by the spectacular jump in the price of the Erie, advanced 1 1/2 and "Big Four" refunding fives "D" scored a similar gain. St. Paul issues were lower on reports that the company might fail to earn its fixed charges. The Erie and the bonds of the so-called Van Sweringen roads yielded to profit taking.

With the possibility that funds still might be required to meet the interest payments on the Chinese Hu Kiang railway fives, which were defaulted yesterday, the bonds recovered partially from their sharp break.

St. Paul and the bonds of an American portion of the Greek loan, to be offered tomorrow, already has been assured by the large number of additional subscriptions. Bakers and prepared to place the Belgian loan on the market Thursday morning if negotiations now pending in Brussels are concluded in time. Wall street heard that the new issue would probably take the form of a 30-year six per cent issue, priced to yield about seven per cent.

Of the common stocks, the movements of the past year was the action of the Southern Railway company in placing its common stock on a 5 per cent annual dividend basis last March, when the initial quarterly payment of $1.25 a share was voted. Dividends were thereafter directed by the inauguration of dividends for which the common stockholders have waited 30 years.

Stockholders of the Atlantic Coast Line were delighted by the declaration of an extra dividend of 1 per cent in addition to the regular annual dividend of 7 per cent. The annual dividend on the common stock of its closely affiliated road, the Louisville and Nashville, was increased from 5 to 6 per cent.

One railroad, the St. Louis and San Francisco, reorganized only a few years ago, inaugurated dividends on both its preferred and common stock. The new dividend schedule placing the preferred shares on a 6 per cent basis in October, the directors a month later declared an initial payment of 10 cents on the 5 per cent on the common and also indicated their confidence in the future by voting the full year's preferred dividends for 1925.

Some of the smaller roads which took favorable dividend action were the Alabama and Vicksburg, which cut a 4 per cent "melon" and Louisville, the Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville, which increased its semi-annual disbursement from 2 to 2 1/2 per cent.

In railroad circles it is agreed that next year will see more general disposition on the part of the carriers to share their prosperity with stockholders.

INTERRELATIONS DECLARED BETTER

A comprehensive survey of what interrelations throughout the south are doing to promote better relations between the races is embodied in the annual report just issued for general distribution by the commission on inter-racial cooperation, with headquarters at Atlanta.

Entitled "Progress in Race Relations," the report is a 20-page pamphlet packed with stories of concrete achievements in better educational facilities, health campaigns, anti-lynching crusade, legal aid, adjustment of differences, provision of public utilities, the study of the relations of the church and college groups, the work of women's organizations in this field, and the cooperation of the press. All the southern states except Arkansas and Florida are covered by the survey and results are cited reaching down into a great number of local communities.

Better Negro Schools. According to the report, the provision of better negro schools has been a major objective everywhere followed closely by efforts for better sanitation, hospital accommodations, street improvement, library and playground facilities, justice in the courts, agricultural training, the care of the delinquent, improved conditions of travel, and other advantages essential to the development of a colored race in character and efficiency.

The report points with special gratification to the reduction of 75 per cent in lynchings in the last two years, from 25 in 1922, to 28 in 1923, and 14 in the current year. No small measure of credit for this result, says the report, is due the newspapers, the "great volume of editorial comment that has helped to make sentiment against this crime." The general attitude of the papers, continues the report, has been sympathetic and helpful.

Change in Sentiment. Most encouraging, says the report, is the great change in public sentiment relative to the race problem that has come about in recent years, resulting in better conditions along all lines. As a notable illustration the fact is cited that in the southern states the per capita expenditures for negro education are now two, three and in one case five times as much as 10 years ago.

The commission on inter-racial cooperation was organized by a group of southern leaders shortly after the world war. Its efforts were in tide of race conflict which threatened the country at that time. The crises having been met, it turned its attention to the problem of the betterment of conditions and attitudes. Its membership now numbers 75 representative men and women. Dr. M. Ashby Jones, of Atlanta, is president of the commission, and Dr. W. W. Alexander has general charge of the work. A directory of the commission and of the executive staff in charge of the report, copies of which are available to all persons interested.

Gilliam Named To Parcel Jobs for Georgia G. O. P.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Washington, December 16.—A solution of the federal patronage situation in Georgia has been obtained to the satisfaction of democrats.

Senator George Gilliam, of Georgia, recently protested to President Coolidge over the authority of Henry Lincoln Johnson, negro republican national committee chairman from Georgia, whom he charged had abused his power.

As a result an arrangement has been made whereby W. Y. Gilliam, republican state chairman will recommend postal appointments and if they meet with the approval of Johnson they will be accepted. Should Johnson disapprove the appointments, the postmaster general would be required to make a final decision.

Georgia Not Governed By Views of Florida On Taxes, Says Walker

Pointing out that there are two sides to every question, and that the Florida constitution is a mere haphazard income tax and inheritance tax as a source of revenue in that state is no exception to the rule, attention was called to the fact that the office of Governor Clifford Walker, to a letter recently published in The Philadelphia Record from a small landowner in Florida.

Commenting on this letter, Governor Walker stated that if the people of Florida desired to exempt all classes of residents from the state tax on real estate, it was no one's business but their own. "But," he added, "that does not mean that Georgians would view with equanimity a similar situation in their own state."

The letter referred to, which was received by The Philadelphia Record following a recent editorial in that paper in regard to the Florida anti-income tax and inheritance tax amendment, reads as follows:

Editor The Record: In regard to your recent editorial about Florida and its taxes, I will give you a few facts. At the recent election Florida voted not to levy taxes on income and inheritance six to one, and then takes it out of fellows like me. My one-acre tract is not worth more than it was ten years ago, but they raised the valuation of it from $50 an acre last year to $200 an acre this year. There's where they make the taxes and make me feel more.

The assessor and tax collector never come around here as they do in your state, and have never seen the place. They go to Duane City, the county seat, to pay the taxes. The assessor about transfers of real estate.

CROSS-STATE HIGHWAY IS OPENED IN FLORIDA

West Palm Beach, Fla., December 16.—The cross-state highway from West Palm Beach to Tampa and St. Petersburg was opened to travel this morning. Among the first passengers to travel the road which connects Florida's east and west coasts, were W. J. Connors, builder of the famous Connors highway, one of the main links in the cross-state route, Charles Crowl, secretary of the New York Central railroad president, and W. G. Stovall, of Okeechobee City.

As the highway was opened, officials of the chamber of commerce here announced further progress in completion of plans for the formal opening of the road and the attendance of the highway department.

Word was received from the Hollywood Land and Water company that 10 large automobiles will be in West Palm Beach Thursday morning at 8 o'clock to augment a fleet of 10 Van Dyke motor safety coaches, and the hundreds of private passenger cars which will combine at that hour in a motorcade to Sebring.

A similar motorcade will be formed at St. Petersburg and Tampa, also to travel the cross-state highway to the Sebring festivities.

An elaborate program is being arranged by the Sebring chamber of commerce and others, for Thursday noon, at which time the representatives of the east and west coasts will meet at this central point after an epoch-making trip over the new highway.

Governor-elect John W. Martin is expected to be the principal speaker of the occasion. Governor Cary A. Harris, who has been in the state since the election, but is not at the ceremony, is considered doubtful.

4 FRENCH NOTABLES INVOLVED BY MALVY

Paris, December 16.—(By The Associated Press.)—Former Premier Poincaré, former President Millerand, the late Theophile Delcassé, former foreign minister, and former Premier Viviani were directly involved in the famous history of the defeatist newspaper, Bonnet Rouge, by Louis J. Malvy, former minister of the interior, during a debate today in the chamber on amnesty.

Parliament last month voted an amnesty bill which specifically included Joseph Caillaux, the former premier, and Malvy. The latter was convicted in 1919 of having incited the enemy during the war and banished from France for three years. Subsequently M. Malvy declared he was not satisfied with the verdict and said he intended to insist upon a complete revision of his case.

Today in the chamber he told some inside details of the case.

The former minister admitted The Bonnet Rouge had been subsidized while he was head of the department of the interior, during the last hours of the war. He stated, however, that what he had been fully approved by a cabinet meeting presided over by Poincaré. He said that one of the first 20,000 francs given to the editor, Miguel Almeyda, 10,000 was furnished by M. Millerand, 10,000 by M. Delcassé and this sum was handed him (Malvy) by M. Viviani to turn over to the editor.

AUTONOMY ASSURED, LEATHERMAN SAYS

Reports received during the past 10 days at headquarters of Georgia Maceabees, 217-22 Peachtree street, indicating that sufficient members will be added before January 1 to obtain autonomy in this state, have been received with unusual interest in all sections of the state, according to State Commander R. E. Leatherman.

"For the past two years we have been striving," Mr. Leatherman said, "toward that goal which would enable Georgia Maceabees to hold state conventions, name representatives to the national organization and to conduct our affairs along lines of our own thinking. The fact that assurances have been received that 1925 will bring that realization makes us all feel a bit exuberant."

The addition of the East Point lodge two weeks ago, and intentions planned in Milledgeville, Macon and other north Georgia cities during the coming few days has added more than 300 members to the order, it is pointed out.

Caravan club plans also are attracting more interest and many Maceabees are devoting their efforts now to the organization of chapters in "planned" features. Mr. Leatherman asserts.

PUBLIC HEARINGS WILL DETERMINE PROPOSED CHANGES

Public hearings will be held on recommendations of a sub-committee to change names of 29 Atlanta streets, it was stated Tuesday by members of the city planning commission. The report of the sub-committee to the commission by city council, will not be taken up at the regular meeting next Monday but will be held later in order to give all interested parties proper notice.

The sub-committee, composed of F. A. Mitchell and Frank Pittman, recommended changing of names on 29 streets where names were duplicated. The recommendation followed a long and minute study of the situation, and will be followed by similar recommendations on other streets.

GEORGE GRANTED DIVORCE MRS. S. A. LYNCH

Paris, December 16.—The French courts today recorded the granting of a divorce to Mrs. Flora Camilla Posey Lynch, of Atlanta, from Stephen Andrew Lynch, to whom she was married January 1, 1908 at Asheville. The decree was on the ground of desertion.

S. A. Lynch, for years a prominent figure in southern theatrical circles, has spent the greater part of his time away from Atlanta for several months. Business associates here Tuesday stated that he was in Florida, looking after extensive real estate investments he has made there, while Mrs. Lynch is reported to be in New York.

Rumors of the divorce plea have been current in local financial and social circles for some time. It is understood that Mr. Lynch has made a handsome life-time settlement on Mrs. Lynch and also has provided liberally for the two minor children of the marriage, who have been awarded to the mother.

Mr. Lynch made his first rise to business prominence in the picture industry, finally operating a chain of picture theaters over the entire southeast under the name of Southern Enterprises, Inc. He later sold out these interests to the Paramount-Lasky corporation.

He next figured in a sensational case in Coca-Cola stock when he was caused by the purchase of International Properties, Inc., from G. F. Willis for an announced price of $2,000,000.

The Lynch holdings in this enterprise were recently sold to a group of New York and Boston interests and he is now reported to be heavily interested in Florida real estate.

BRANDEGEE'S SEAT WON BY BINGHAM

New Haven, Conn., December 16.—Colonel Hiram Bingham, lieutenant-governor of Connecticut, and governor-elect, was elected United States senator today to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Frank B. Brandegee. The republican nominee ran up a record of 35,000 votes ahead of his democratic opponent, Hamilton Holt, editor and publisher, who in August made Woodstock, where his ancestral home is, his voting place.

The election today showed a great falling off in the vote of both parties as compared with the November election, but nevertheless, the towns relatively held their republican strength and swamped the few cities which were in the hands of the democrats.

The vote of the state complete was: Bingham, 112,200; Holt, 71,690.

The election of Mr. Bingham, a United States senator, while yet to be sworn in as governor of the state, is the first time that a republican has been elected to the governorship of the state since the death of the late Governor Brandegee.

Mr. Bingham will be inaugurated governor on January 7. The vote for Bingham was 112,200; Holt, 71,690.

BODY OF GOMPERTS ON LAST JOURNEY

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Washington, December 17.—Samuel Gompers, shortly after midnight began his last journey from the nation's capital, and for more than a century he directed the forces of the American Federation of Labor.

Accompanied by his widow and three sons, the body of the labor chief was started on the way to New York after lying in state in the federal headquarters for about six hours, congressional, labor and fraternal circles joined a throng of friends and followers in filing past the bier in tribute to his memory.

LABOR HEADQUARTERS WAS SHRINE OF GRIEF

Washington, December 16.—For a few brief hours the spirit of Samuel Gompers again dominated the plain stone building here from which he directed for so long the policies of American labor, as hundreds of his followers passed silently through a flower-filled anteroom at its entrance and paid their last tribute to his casket.

Twilight was closing a cold raw day when the flag-draped coffin bearing his body was lifted from a caisson and borne to the funeral home, where it was placed in the building by a group of United States soldiers. Hundreds, however, watched the end of the procession, which had moved slowly through the streets of the capital from the Union station. Employees who have worked for years under Gompers and had seen him leave for Mexico still active, still with a fire which still had not dimmed, saw their chief thus brought back to his old headquarters again.

Following the casket into the building were the leaders of labor, plain men, silent and rather austere. His widow followed them, her black figure supported by Henry Gompers, one of the sons of the dead chief. Two other sons followed with their wives. When the funeral party had entered, the crowd which had been waiting surged up toward the doors. They were held back. The body of the dead labor leader was the sacred possession of his family for an hour in his old home. Afterward the doors were opened and those who had waited in the cold were admitted to file silently through the perfumed room, banded to the ceiling with flowers sent from all parts of the country.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC GRANTS WAGE HIKE

San Francisco, December 16.—The differences between the Southern Pacific company and its workers in engine service, which resulted recently in an overwhelming vote to strike, have been amicably settled, according to an agreement made public today by the company.

The agreement will mean a total wage advance of approximately $500,000 a year on the Southern Pacific system, the company announced. The new wage agreement is retroactive to September 1.

The bonds, which are city of Atlanta, state of Georgia, Fulton county, and United States, are held in reserve, and can be issued at any time.

STREET CAR-TRAIN CRASH KILLS FOUR

Helena, Mont., December 16.—Four persons are dead, and four others are in a hospital critically injured as a result of a collision between a Great Northern train and a street car here late Tuesday.

The dead are: Rudolph Houder, for the minor children of the marriage, who have been awarded to the mother.

Mr. Lynch made his first rise to business prominence in the picture industry, finally operating a chain of picture theaters over the entire southeast under the name of Southern Enterprises, Inc. He later sold out these interests to the Paramount-Lasky corporation.

HOWARD L. JONES CAUGHT IN FLORIDA

Macon, Ga., December 16.—(Special.)—Howard L. Jones, former chief clerk in the office of former State Mechanic J. C. Cain, of the Southern Railway shops here, and said to be the "master mind" in the embezzlement from the railroad running high into five figures, is in the county jail after a worldwide hunt.

The Bibb county grand jury indicted Jones on January 6, 1923, and placed in the jail here this morning to answer two indictments. To railroad special agents who placed him under arrest in Jacksonville, Jones stated that he had been in Jacksonville ever since he disappeared from here, with the exception of three times when he came back to Macon for short visits. He said that he covered up his identity by dying his hair red and by wearing a red mustache.

NO EVIDENCE FOUND OF G. O. P. SLUSH FUND

Washington, December 16.—The senate campaign fund committee made short work today of its inquiry into the "million-dollar" slush fund, purported to have been handled through four western reserve banks. Finding no evidence to support the story, the committee gave up the hunt for a brief hearing.

Counsel for Senator La Follette, who originally suggested that line of inquiry, informed the committee chairman, William Borah, that they themselves believed that telegrams supposed to deal with the "slush fund" were forgeries.

The closing date for The Constitution's Cross-Word Puzzle Contest has passed. All puzzles sent in later than midnight, on Sunday last, cannot be eligible for the prize of a season ticket to the Howard theater.

However, that does not mean that they won't be published in the paper. The Cross-Word Puzzle Editor has a pile several feet high on his desk. These are all good enough for publication. For he has already decided to select the prize winner. Put him in his task. And, in the meantime, he is going to keep on publishing them, selecting from among the best and publishing one a day.

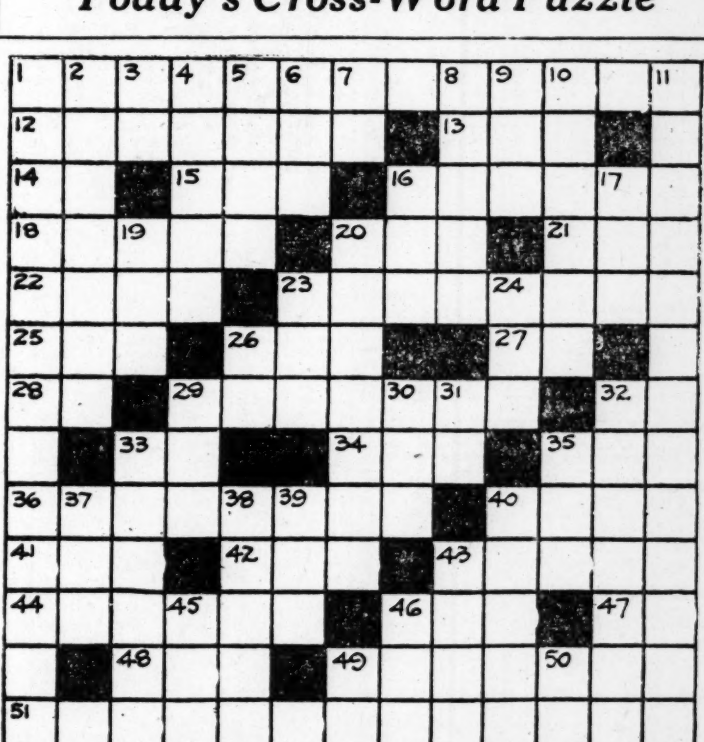

Today's puzzle is from Miss Annie Chappell, of Euclid Avenue. It is not extremely difficult, but it is excellently constructed. The interlock is good, the words are well defined and, unless the editor is badly mistaken, you'll come across some words that will please you, after you find out what they mean.

The name of the winner of the first prize, the season pass to the Howard, will be announced just as quickly as possible and in any event, not later than January 1.

The solution to the puzzle which appeared in Monday's Constitution is given herewith:

Howard Theater—Thomas Meighan in "Tongues of Flame."

Metropolitan Theater—Abraham Lincoln.

Rialto Theater—Betty Compson in "The Garden of Weeds."

Tudor Theater—"Feet of Clay," all-star.

Alpha Theater—Sketches, western drama and comedies.

Twin Beds.

(At the Lyric.)

"Twin Beds" is the farce comedy adapted to musical comedy production, has been accorded top place among the series of musical farces presented by Lyric Bridge Players at the Lyric theater during the last five weeks. Critics and patrons alike agree that the musical company is making good its promise of a brilliant season. It is well worth seeing for comedy or for music and dancing spectacles alone. Calvin Rolfe's Famous Players orchestra does the instrumental tricks that make it a real hit.

Lyric Players.

(Seat Sale Open.)

Return of the Lyric Players dramatic stock company, which left Monday for a gala reopening Christmas week has been hailed with enthusiasm by thousands of patrons waiting during the company's previous 14 weeks' engagement. News of its return and that "Just Married" was to be the first play has resulted in a record-breaking sale of seats. It is a record which may be broken every seat for every performance next week might be taken before the opening night, which would be an unprecedented thing in Atlanta. The players are rehearsing twice daily for the opening performance.

Vaudeville.

(At Keith's Forsyth.)

Only the comedians and patrons of Keith's Forsyth or any other vaudeville house, for that matter, find genuine laughter in the quantity which is being produced at the Lyric. The comedians of this week by Neil McKinley, who is headlining the program at the popular theater.

Also in program includes the act of Kathleen Morris in "The Gown Shop." Tom Kerr and Edith Ensing are the "Non-Skid Skidders," while Marion Mills and George Kimball present "Soups of Today and Yesterday." Three Armstrongs entertain in a cycling act.

Loew's Vaudeville.

(At Loew's Grand.)

Arturo Bernardi, the great Protean artist, who has appeared before the king and queen of England, is presenting the novel comedy show this week at Loew's Grand theater. Bernardi takes the parts of every character in a three-act play and causes amazement by his ability to change quickly both in makeup and acting from one character to another. Beverly Bayne heads an all-star cast in the feature playlet, "The Tenth Woman," and four other good acts.

Thomas Meighan.

(At the Howard.)

Thomas Meighan, "Tongues of Flame" produced by Joseph Henabery. That's the reason this Paramount picture is packing 'em at the Howard this week. Nothing like using plain, ordinary, every-day words to describe it either. It's a great melodrama. "A Birth of a Butterfly" is the prologue.

Betty Compson.

(At the Rialto.)

"The Garden of Weeds," starring Betty Compson, is the feature of the week's program at the Rialto. It is the latest of Paramount's Famous Forty, and the fifth to be directed by that master hand, James Cruze.

The short subject, "The Love Master," is "William Tell," one of the "Telephone Girl" series.

Crystal Theater.

(For Colored.)

For nearly a year Strongheart, recognized leader of canine stars of the screen, has been absent from local motion picture houses, while other pleasing and talented stars have been seated in good productions. Now just as if to show that he is willing to give every dog a chance to have his chance to shine, he has been seated in the leadership away from him. Strongheart is back, more brilliant and fascinating than ever. His new first feature starring Strongheart, is "The Love Master," the current attraction at the Crystal theater.

TAX PUBLICATION UPHELD BY JUDGE

Baltimore, December 16.—Upholding the demurrer of the Baltimore Post to an indictment for publishing income tax returns, Federal Judge Morris A. Soper today held that Congress, by the act of 1924, had determined to abandon the policy of securing the amount of taxes paid from the general public.

"One perceives," he declared, "that it is counter to the very spirit of the law to punish those who, by added publicity, materially assist to accomplish the very object which Congress had in view."

The Post demurred to the indictment on three grounds: First, that the matter published was not part of the income tax return but merely a copy of the list prepared and made available to public inspection; second, that the publication was not in a manner not provided by law, and third, that if the law is interpreted to prohibit such publication then it is unconstitutional on the ground that it abridges the freedom of the press, protected by the first amendment to the constitution.

To Appeal Case.
The case will be appealed, according to advice from Washington.

Judge Soper confined his discussion to the second contention of the demurrer which is based on the publicity provisions of section 257 of the revenue act of 1924. He did not deal with the constitutional phase of the case.

"Comparison of the two sections which deal with the publicity provisions suggests an inconsistency in their terms . . . or confusion of underlying purpose or intention," Judge Soper said.

The intention of the law-making body, however, should prevail, even against the letter of the statute, and if the literal interpretation of every part of the statute operates unjustly or leads to absurd results, or be contrary to the evident meaning of the act taken as a whole, it should be rejected.

Defines Word "Publish."
"To publish is to make public—to make known to people in general. In the statute, it does not cover the private communication by one person to another. It is not synonymous with 'communicate' as it may be in the law of libel or slander. Other provisions of the law make this clear."

"The question remains whether the right of public inspection of a part of the returns includes the right to print or publish. Public inspection is an inspection open to all the people. But one may acquire information and yet have no right to publish it, as in the case of privileged communications or copyrighted documents, or under certain circumstances, public records such as land records. . . .

"A distinction between inspection and publication exists. Doubtless Congress made a distinction (except insofar as it may be restrained by constitutional prohibition), in settling the policy of the law of taxation, how much or how little publicity of income tax returns shall be given."

PERE MARQUETTE CHIEFS TO VOTE ON MERGER TODAY

New York, December 16.—The executive committee of the Pere Marquette Railway company tomorrow is expected to approve the terms of the proposed lease which would weld the road in the new Nickel Plate system together with the present Nickel Plate, Chesapeake & Ohio, Hocking Valley and Erie railroads.

A special committee of the Pere Marquette at a meeting today is understood to have submitted a favorable report on the lease to the executive committee, which in turn will recommend its adoption by the board of directors. The directors and executive committee of the Erie railroad accepted the lease last week.

Details of the lease terms which have been guarded closely so far may be made public after the approval of the Pere Marquette board is obtained.

Flames Add Zest To Aerial 'Stunts' By Noted Acrobats

New York, December 16.—The Leaping Lyons, the Flying Faunists and the Yumping Youngs, refined acrobats and acrobats all, and inmates of a theatrical boarding house just off Broadway, gave away approximately $1,000 worth of their talent Tuesday when a crowd of about 2,000 people watched them descend from their rooms as fire destroyed the upper stories of the house.

That would make the price of admission about 50 cents a head, and considering how the Lyons, the Faunists and the Youngs out-did their selves in the frolics of the spirit of the occasion, 50 cents was a bargain.

Hand-over-hand down the iron ladders, leaping from landing to landing, the acrobats twirled nonchalantly in mid-air by the toes, and Papa Leon, a juggling little Lower Case Leon, age 5, the three families made intricate progress from their rooms to the pavements.

Leon even went back to help a man down the fire escape, and accused him of grabbing the net when this person, who was neither an acrobat nor an aerialist, but a sedate member of the pants-pressing profession, positively refused to be tossed into the arms of Mr. Young.

MAYOR APPROVES AIDE FOR CHIEF OF CONSTRUCTION

An amendment to the recently passed ordinance transferring the city plumbing department, Tuesday was approved by Mayor Walter A. Sims and will become effective January 1.

The amendment adopted authorizes the chief to appoint an assistant in charge of plumbing, the assistant's duties to be the same as those now vested in the chief plumbing inspector.

ONE WAY TRAFFIC ON NORTH PRYOR STREET APPROVED

Signature of Mayor Walter Sims Tuesday made effective traffic ordinances making North Pryor street a one-way thoroughfare for northbound traffic only between Peachtree and Edgewood avenues, and also making a non-parking zone on Peachtree street from the north property line of the Atlanta Woman's club at 948 to a point 100 feet south. Both ordinances were passed by city council Monday and will become effective at once.

KLAVERN OF KLAN RAZED BY BLAZE

Portland, Me., December 16.—The Klavern owned by the Ku Klux Klan and having a seating capacity of 4,000 persons, was destroyed by fire tonight. The loss is estimated at between $50,000 and $75,000.

Later the home of the Klan on the same estate caught fire and late tonight was beyond control. The Klavern, a wooden structure, was unoccupied. It was built last year.

The cause of the fire has not been determined.

In a three-cent cake of yeast, it has been estimated that there are 22 times as many yeast cells as there are people in the entire world.

$200,000 IN REALTY SALES ARE REPORTED

Continued activity in real estate circles in Atlanta was evidenced Tuesday by announcements of large sales, including a large apartment and several smaller parcels. The total amount involved was $200,000.

The principal item in the transactions was the sale of an apartment house at 717 Ponce de Leon avenue, for $95,000 by A. H. Harper and J. F. Evans to the Municipal Investment Company. This sale was announced by J. H. Ewing & Sons, P. C. McDuffie, is said to be interested in the company making the purchase. The apartment is located on a lot fronting 100 feet on Ponce de Leon.

The following sales totaling about $100,000, reported by the Burdette Realty company: Two-story brick home at 165 Briarcliff road, by Dr. G. D. Ayer to Moreland Heights, Inc. The purchaser took in exchange property at Rosedale and Virginia avenue. While the consideration was not announced, it is understood that the home is valued at around $30,000.

Other sales reported by the company include two homes on Woodcrest avenue, Brookwood Hills, for H. W. Nicholas, to C. F. Palmer and J. W. McMillan, for $28,000, and lots totaling $35,000 to the following purchasers: Tom Lewis, E. R. Black, Mrs. L. E. McKnight, Roy S. Jennings, Miss Gladys, Ruby and Janet Hardegree, and a son, Robert Hardegree, to C. F. Palmer and J. W. McMillan.

Several local banks maintain special Christmas savings funds and these will be available for Christmas. Bankers say that these funds are being all spent but go into permanent savings accounts or serve as the nucleus for some long-dreamed-of purchase, perhaps a home.

The Christmas savings will be distributed before the holidays, while the dividends will be paid on January first.

POST EXCHANGES ORDERED TO SELL TO SOLDIERS ONLY

Washington, December 16.—Major General Robert C. Davis, the adjutant general, today notified Senator Harris, democrat, Georgia, that he had suggested to the commanding general of the fourth corps area to restrict patronage of army post exchanges to the personnel of the army.

This step was taken to overcome objections of commercial firms in Georgia, who had complained that the post-exchanges were able to undersell them on tobacco products by being immune to the Georgia state tobacco tax.

The adjutant general said he had recommended the use of an individual card system to make certain that only soldiers profited by the prices of the exchanges.
